A few REASONS WHY you should RENT your RADIO

In the first place it eliminates all the responsibilities of ownership—all the snags that spoil the pleasure of owning a radio, such as bills for repairs, the expense of replacing spent valves, etc. You enjoy modern radio at its best, and haven't to worry about the set getting out of date, or letting you down when you most need it, or running you into expense. You pay your rentals—that's all! No extras! Free maintenance, decreasing rentals, free spares, option to cancel if you wish . . . . these are all part and parcel of the Crosley Service. It's a good deal! Rentals from 2/- weekly. Monthly terms can be arranged. If you prefer you can pay half-yearly in advance and enjoy a reduction of 5%, or yearly in advance and enjoy a reduction of 5% on the first 6 months and 10% on the second six months. Apply for full particulars.

FROM 2/- PER WEEK

CONTRACTS.

DUBLIN BOARD OF PUBLIC HEALTH.

NOTICE TO WELL SINKERS.

The Dublin Board of Public Health will, at Meeting to be held on 15th April, 1941, consider Tenders for the Sinking and Lining of a new Dug-well at the site of the present artesian boring at Kilshane, Finglas.

The work will require to be carried out in accordance with the Specification prepared by Mr. F. P. Russell, M.R.I.A.I., M.I.C.E.I., Engineer to the Board, No. 6 Parnell Square, Dublin, at whose office Specification and Form of Tender can be obtained on application.

The work will require to be put in hands within one month from date of acceptance of Tender.

Solvent security will be required for the due performance of the Contract.

Sealed Tenders, on the Official Form only, and endorsed "New Well, Kilshane," will be received by the undersigned up to 12 noon on 11th April, 1941.

The lowest or any Tender will not necessarily be accepted.

By Order:
F. A. MAGUIRE, Acting-Secretary.
Offices: 11 Parnell Square, Dublin.
Date: 29th March, 1941.

DUN LAOGHAIRE BOROUGH CORPORATION.

TO BUILDING CONTRACTORS.

TENDERS FOR REPAIRS TO ARTISANS' DWELLINGS AND OTHER CORPORATION PROPERTY.

The Dun Laoghaire Borough Corporation invite Tenders from competent Contractors for Repairs to Artisans' Dwellings and other Corporation Property in the Dun Laoghaire Borough Area, for the period ending 31st March, 1942.

Schedule of Repairs and Form of Tender may be obtained at my office during office hours, on payment of a sum of 5/- (not refundable).

Tenders, properly sealed and endorsed "Tenders for Repairs," will be received by me up to 1 p.m. on 11th April, 1941.

The Corporation does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any Tender.

It will be a condition of the Contract that the Contractors whose Tenders are accepted must satisfy the Corporation that they have, or will establish, suitable workshops within the Borough Area during the period of the Contract, and will maintain suitable and sufficient staff for the performance of the work.

A Contract under seal to be prepared by the Corporation's Law Agent must be completed by the accepted Contractors and their Sureties.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

Money

"The Alleged Mysteries of Modern Finance"

Money. By Professor Alfred O'Rahilly. Cor: Cork University Press. 7/6 net.

IN his introduction, Professor O'Rahilly says he has "done his best to dissipate some of the alleged mysteries of modern finance." It is, indeed, strange that so many well-educated and knowledgeable men are content to regard finance as so mysterious that they take no trouble to find out anything about it. Future generations will, no doubt, wonder at an age in which such a fundamentally simple matter as money should cause such confusion in theory and inefficiency in practice.

As Professor O'Rahilly points out, the confusion is often the result of a deliberate smoke screen thrown out by vested interests, fearful of the slightest change. He gives some piquant examples, among then the question as to whether banks increase their (aggregate) deposits by increasing their advances to borrowers.

Mr. Regirald McKenna, chairman of the Midland Bank and an ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer, states specifically that they do, but Professor O'Rahilly quotes several unimpeachably orthodox sources for the statement that banks, being merely trustees for their depositors, are limited in their activities by the amount of their deposits.

There is, of course, no doubt on the point at this time of day, yet the latter argument is still good enough to trot out when occasion demands and is quite familiar to Irish ears.

Gentle Irony

Professor O'Rahilly, had he wished, might have produced a devastating volume, composed solely of contradictory quotations in appropriate juxtaposition, from economists, chairmen of banks, Chancellors of the Exchequer, etc., but his book is very far from being merely an attack on wooden orthodoxy. The note of gentle irony is struck often enough to stimulate, but the book is a lucid, complete exposition of the subject from primitive barter to the operations of the joint stock banks.

Irish readers will, naturally, be interested in what he has to say on his subject as it affects this country, and they will not be disappointed.

He deals faithfully and sometimes pungently with the policy which in the past has earned applause from meetings of bank shareholders and metaphorical groans from the rest of the community. He is a trenchant critic of the arrangements whereby the Irish pound is payable on demand in London, and points out that, since our currency is, in fact, sterling, our balances have flowed to London and never flowed back again, and that as a result Ireland always was, and still is, short of credit and deficient in purchasing power.

His remedy for this state of affairs is the establishment of a central bank under Government control. He anticipates criticism of "control by politicians" by asking why a community that tolerates semi-State institutions like the Electricity Supply Board, the Irish Sugar Beet Company, the Industrial Credit Corporation, and many others, should suppose that banking operations controlled on similar lines should not be as successful.

Naturally, his suggestions as to what is wrong and as to how to set things right are not likely to pass unchallenged; indeed, two of his chapters consist largely of a discussion between Professor O'Rahilly and Mr. J. P. Colbert, in which there is plenty of agreement to differ.

The reader will have every opportunity of judging the merits of the disputants, particularly in view of subsequent developments.

On p. 304/5 he says: "In diagnosing Ireland's disease we should take as the serious and significant symptom not the exporting on credit, but the insufficiency of internal purchasing power, of effective circulating money. We do not develop our resources, for, we are asked, 'Where is the money to come from?'" Events are moving rapidly; we are now compelled to develop our own resources, and the question is not only where is the money to come from, but where has it gone to?

Finding Money

Only a couple of weeks ago a Minister told his audience that the sterling assets and outside investments of the country are in deadly peril and at best are not realisable at the moment. However, country after country has proved in the last few years that money can always be found if it is needed badly enough.

Our neighbour across the water that ten years ago hurled a Government out of office because it refused to cut unemployment benefit by a million a week is now spending twelve millions a day, not to mention the totalitarian States who appear to have transcended all mundane considerations of finance.

No doubt, we, too, in Ireland can overcome our problems without shedding a tear for the capital equipment we might have bought during the last few years if we had not been so intent on seeing our outside assets grow. To do this it will certainly be necessary to make some departure from the strict line of orthodoxy, and, who knows, we may yet see Professor O'Rahilly taking an active part in the direction of financial policy.

Of his competence in the matter, the book is the best evidence. A pleasing feature is that his footnotes and quotations, though numerous, are presented in a manner that does not annoy.

The book leaves nobody the excuse of saying "Finance is too intricate a subject for me"—nobody, that is, who has brains enough to master contract bridge, to give only one comparison.

J. T. H.

To An Irish Friend

By JOHN EGLINTON.

AH yes, you sleep in peace, and when you wake
See the late moonlight on your window pane,
Or hear the swish of boughs, the gusts of rain,
Or cry of wild thing from your distant lake;
While here, all hours until the dawn doth break,
Night's silence shudders when, 'mid uproar vain,
The unseen terror rides o'er town and plain,
—And yet to pity us were to mistake.
Thrice-blessed yet shall sun and moonlight fall
On this old land when its fierce trials end;
Which quail'd not when it proudly did recall
That the world's hopes upon its life depend:
The unwilling foe, the universal friend
(Believe it), and the guardian of us all.

Words and Music

The Art of the Song

Words for Music. By V. C. Clinton-Baddeley. Cambridge University Press. 7/6 net.

THE art of song and song-writing has steadily declined during the past century-and-a-half or more. Poets are now seldom musicians, and musicians not oft have little sympathy for the poets. Either the words of a song are trivial, the music is poor, or the words and music do not mate in that happy unity which produces the perfect song. Seemingly, the only occasions nowadays when words and song fit each other are in asexual yowlings of modern syncopation, but that is merely because both have sunk to the last depth of inanity. True, there are exceptions, but these are so rare as to count for little.

In short, song is dead, "almost as completely a lost art as playwriting." Thus, A. H. Bullen, of "Elizabethan Song Book" fame. In his preface, Mr. Clinton-Baddeley puts it even more forcibly. "Words and music," he writes, "have grown too far apart, and the new bastard art of the concert platform has attempted to shoulder aside cuckoo-like the art of song."

As a result, for the vast majority of people song has become a dumb art. They do not wish to sing the easy music and the horrible verses about comrades and caravans and dear old ladies. . . . They are unable to sing the difficult music of the serious composers. This lamentable state of affairs, which is self-evident to any musically-minded person or lover of poetry is of old standing." Since the eighteenth century the aims of poets and composers have widely diverged, and, with rare exceptions, matters have rapidly reached the present doleful state of affairs.

So many of the great poets have been either wholly unmusical, or else uninterested in music; Shelley, Swinburne, Tennyson and Housman, to mention but some. "The poets have lost all touch with the technique of music, and, in part, because the poets have lost all touch with the technique of music, the musicians have taken liberties.

"When the poets ceased to write deliberately for music the musicians, at a loss for material, went poaching." This has been done in several ways. "The musician has wronged, and is constantly wronging, poetry in two ways, first, when he sets words to music in a way which stultifies the sense of the poetry, or destroys by his rhythms the rhythms of the original work; and, secondly, when he sets words to music which ought never to have been set at all.

"This is particularly noticeable in certain of the madrigals wherein the words have been so 'réchauffé'd' that it is actually impossible to reassemble the original words of the poem from the pages of the musical score."

This book is largely the outcome of conversations held with the late W. B. Yeats, who "was obsessed by a great desire to revive the ancient art of English song." But Yeats had his limitations. He was not musical. "He had no sense of pitch, but a perfect sense of rhythm . . . . He had a heart for singing; but he had no ear for it," so that the arguments which he employed for the furtherance of his theories are confused. Mr. Clinton-Baddeley surely has hit the right nail when he writes: "Song will not rise again in these islands until the poets and musicians will combine to create a contemporary art. The old songs were contemporary songs, a part of the living existence of the people—never self-conscious, never hankering after a past fashion, never masquerading in a fancy dress. The old songs were about vital matters—about love and battle and drink, serious subjects to engage the heart of man. If our poets could fall in love again, as Burns fell in love, or be inspired, as Moore was inspired, to honour the music of his country; if they could write a political song as Yeats could write it, or the authors of the old broadsides; if they could serve the public in the theatre as Dryden or Shakespeare or the ballad makers served the public: then would there be an end to all the whimsicalities and false sentiment of modern singing, and the living art of song be born again."

In the Steps of Saint Joan

Historical, Geographical and Spiritual Approach

The Land of Saint Joan. By Owen Rutter. London: Methuen. 15/- net.

"AND the name Jeanne d'Arc was a password which opened every door." This sentence from Mr. Rutter's book sums up the feeling of all France towards their great national heroine, a feeling which has endured nigh upon half a thousand years, and which, so it would appear, is destined to leaven the spiritual France for all earthly time.

Mr. Rutter has approached his subject in three ways. There is the historical, in which he deals with her actual deeds and influence upon the France of her day; the geographical, in which he covers anew the ground she trod while on earth, and whereon she achieved her triumphs and endured her great trials and the spiritual, devoted to the discussion of her mysterious "voices" and the guidance from above under which she accomplished such extraordinary feats. Truly, an adequate way in which to deal with one so bound up with all three aspects of a country.

The author has gone about his task in the proper spirit. He appreciates to the full the spiritual significance of St. Jeanne, and, although his interpretations may run counter in one part of the book to that of the Church in which the saint was born and bred, it is done with sincerity and reverence, and cannot give offence. The thoroughness with which Mr. Rutter has carried out his quest is remarkable. He has not only followed the way of Jeanne d'Arc as she journeyed to see the Dauphin on her mission, but he has lived where she lived, walked the ways which she must have known in life, and altogether done his best to absorb the atmosphere, both spiritual and historical, in which she moved.

This may be illustrated by a quotation. "It seemed to bring us very close to Jeanne to follow her steps to this peaceful shrine, passing through the same meadows that she saw, drinking from the same well and climbing the same steep track through the pine-woods to the chapel she loved so well. The scene can have changed so little; larks would have been singing when she crossed the meadowland in summer, and wild flowers blooming."

This visit to Bermont is typical of the whole book. It indicates the extreme care which was taken to absorb the correct background.

Mr. Rutter is quite convinced of Jeanne's spiritual mission. Indeed, the evidence he advances to support this would take a deal of clever controversy to assail in even the slightest degree. History is too sure on the points of her prophetic powers, military skill so suddenly acquired, and the devotion and trust she inspired in seasoned and well-experienced soldiers as Bertrand de Poulengy and Jean de Metz.

The author, too, has shown much taste in including the tales and incidents from the saint's life which bring before one the crystal clarity of her soul and the directness of her mind. The very beautiful and tasteful woodcuts by Averil Mackenzie Grieve are in keeping with the spirit of the book and add to its value not a little.

CHANGED UTTERLY

By DONAGH MacDONAGH.

EVENTS which change the direction of a people's thought are bound as of right to be reflected in the work of the people's poets, whose tongues are the unconscious servant of the nation. The poets reflect accurately every phase of a civilisation, though they may not be at any time aware of that reflection; in their songs they will echo history as it grows. The poets of the 16th and 17th centuries did not aim to express their age, they did not attempt to reflect the changing world about them, yet when they are most poets they are most typical of their time.

Events shape poets just as poets may sometimes shape events so that their very vocabulary may be revolutionised because of a social revolution going on about them. Though they may never refer to it, and often a war outside the door finds no direct reference in their work, the emotion of the people must find reflection in their minds To the reader coming to their work long after even their most personal lyrics of love or hatred will chart the graph of a country's decline or growth.

In an intensely self-conscious and intellectual period such as preceded the present war, the poets of a nation are acutely sensitive to the problems of the age, they try consciously to express these problems, and even to solve them—they write politically propagandist verse, intended to influence the people or their representatives, they divert their energy into the pamphlet and the platform. In this they are symptomatic of the attitude of the nation; in the chaotic and complex period before a war their work is chaotic and complex, when the simplicity of force has given direction to the people's mind their verse becomes simple and direct.

PROFESSOR ALFRED O'RAHILLY.

SUPERFICIAL INFLUENCE

The past twenty-five years ' ' seen the most radical change in the technique and direction of poetry, and the most complete divorce between the poetry of England and Ireland. Whatever the superficial influence exercised on the growing mind of the young poet, it is essentially an artificial influence, since it originates in circumstances peculiar to another civilisation, and in effect to another time. The more complex the situation, the more complex its verse, so the diction and method necessary to express the metropolitan complexity of England is undesirable in a country where the issues are relatively clear and unequivocal.

In England for the past twenty-five years there has been that intensely self-conscious social verse of which I have spoken, verse reflecting the chaotic aftermath of a World War and a prolonged industrial revolution, while in Ireland during the same period we have had, in spite of several guerrilla campaigns, a quiet and logical evolution of verse an Apostolic succession leading from the Celtic twilight through the various phases of Yeats' development. I say Yeats because he represents broadly in his single person not one generation of poets, but every generation since the publication of his first book. He, as a kind of Corporation Sole represented the poetic evolution of nearly fifty years. He renewed himself in each new holocaust of passion, and inverted his life, ending on a swan-note of youthful and arrogant pride, such as youth can never dare.

CLARKE, YEATS AND HIGGINS

Clarke, rebelling against, and yet complementary to, Yates; Higgins, springing from a different soil, transmuting the traditional melody of the people; the half-dozen or so other good poets who have been writing during the last quarter-century, each sounding a personal and recognisable note, have all succeeded in expressing their Ireland, an Ireland which a synthesis of their work would represent complete. Our wars find little specific reference in their poems, they are little concerned with social problems, yet no word would have been written in quite the same way had those wars not been waged, just as no writer of to-day is unaffected by the work of Joyce. Even those who have never opened his Philosophers Tomes use a transmuted vocabulary because he wrote.

Had the writers of 1916 never achieved their masterpiece of force we would have a different literature to-day. Houses would be standing that are burned. Friends would be alive who would have influenced form; hands would never have held a gun that are now calloused from its use. But who can say what we would have instead? Would our literature be a provincial literature, the heir apparent of the Celtic Twilight? Some facts are certain. There would be less of that work which is dependant on an Irish original. There would be less Continental and American and more English influence on our work. There would be no Irish column in the Irish Times.

Many of our writers would be as they were in the years before 1916 the servants of freedom; there would be more political writing and intriguing, because there would be a country still to rouse; more idealism because the unbelief and cynicism which are the aftermath of revolution would never have embittered the people; more rhetoric, since freedom is a wordy mistress.

THE POETRY OF ACTION

The Ifs of History are sterile imaginings, but if the leaders of 1916 had not thrown pen and paper, poems and all into one grave the poetry of to-day would be a dry and withered thing, whose roots were in the 19th century, or an artificial outcropping of the "Faber Book of Modern Verse." They are the greatest influence on the poet of to-day, not in the poetry of words, but of actions.

The closer a literature is brought to our eyes the more myopic we become—who has not shuddered at some of the later pages of the "Oxford Book of English Verse?" So it is no simple task to evaluate the poetry of the last quarter-century. Yeats to our eyes overtops the age, but before the newest generation of poets has died it may be that he will have fallen into the sombre neglect which has covered so many mighty figures from sight. The critic of the '90's may date our charter of poetic freedom from an Easter Monday, or perhaps they will put it as far back as the last fin de siècle when the previous generation of poets was coming into power. Whatever date these clear-sighted grandsons of ours may choose, there is little doubt that they will see in the root and bud and flower of our verse the same compulsion which set those poets of 1916 to writing their poetry and history on the charred walls of Dublin.

Mr. Reed Returns to the Charge

London: Before and After the "Blitz"

A Prophet at Home. By Douglas Reed. London: Cape. 10/6 net.

ONE does not want to criticise Mr. Douglas Reed's new book, the third of the trilogy whose first two members were "Insanity Fair" and "Disgrace Abounding." One wants to sit down and write another book like it. That, at least, is the reaction of an Irish reviewer, who perceives in his own country so many instances of the sloth, the conservatism, the lack of vision, the ostrich mentality that Mr. Reed castigates in his loved England.

Irish writers have written with bitterness about Ireland. Ireland generally has answered them by banning their books, and by counter-attacking the authors from pulpit, platform, and Press with a ferocity that has betrayed an uneasy consciousness that the authors in question are probably right after all. The English do not do that sort of thing. They take a castigation very well. Their so-called sense of humour—on which, by the way, Mr. Reed has quite a lot to say—swings into action. They treat the poor, misguided wretch with amused tolerance. They may buy his book and suffer in silence, but they would not admit it.

Unfortunately, the technique of both nations comes to the same thing in the end. The reformer does not get his reform across. We Irish become angry; the English laugh; but in both lands the abuses which the author castigated remain unchanged, to become a deeper and more painful canker as the years go on.

Noble Fury

"A Prophet at Home" is full of noble fury. Douglas Reed watched his country drifting to war, when, as he believes, the drift could have been arrested. But it could not be arrested because old men were in power, old crusted Tories, Colonel Blimps, the products of a narrow caste system, represented by two or three public schools.

One thing, he believes, could have put a stop to Germany's advance, and that would have been an understanding between England and Russia. But England would have nothing of such an understanding, because the old men were terrified of the bare name of Communism, saw National-Socialist Germany as Europe's bulwark against the menace, and failed to foresee the infinitely greater menace to their peace and privilege. And even when war actually had begun, says Mr. Douglas Reed, what was there in England to give him hope that she could face the greatest ordeal in her history? A country whose agriculture had been destroyed by inaction and the very name of "the open road" a mockery, so rigidly was the open road confined by the walls of great estates: a merrie England whose merriment came in cans from Hollywood; a nation of great cities in which every main street looked like every other main street, and of country towns that had lost activity and character alike; a country so thoroughly ridden by aliens that, while Parliament could not find time to debate the slum conditions of its own people, it could find two days to make life easier for a handful of "friendly aliens" who included, perhaps, half a hundred of dangerously hostile Fifth Columnists—what chance, said Mr. Douglas Reed to himself, had such a country?

A New Life

He changed his mind. The Blitzkrieg against London and Coventry and other cities changed it for him. He discovered that the war could evoke new qualities, higher and nobler than the mere capacity to "take it." He watched new life come into little towns which had been dropping into decay for a hundred years. He found comradeship, both in the débris of London's streets, and in the peace of his own little cottage overlooking the English Channel, where the arrival of slum children, evacuated from their squalid homes in the city, revealed what a place England still might be. And he ends his book on a note of high hope.

But how much, he says and implies, remains to be done. Will the country sink back after the war—a victorious war, of course—into the lethargy and decay which permitted it to face war unprepared? Will the slums remain; or will the prevalent attitude still be, "My dear, those people keep coals in the bath?" In a sentence, will England emerge purified, or will she continue to balk at reforms—the word is inconvenient, but irreplaceable—which the majority of other countries, including the great Dominions, have effected years ago?

He believes that the flames of war will cleanse his country, in spite of the old men; for he does not class a Churchill with a Ramsay Macdonald or a Chamberlain. But he is not sure. Men thought that the Great War of 1914-18—which Mr. Reed regards as the first instalment of the World War—would be the birth-pains of a re-made England; yet the "years between" have been the saddest of all.

He barely mentions Ireland, which is, perhaps, just as well. We could do with a Douglas Reed of our own. His analysis would provoke anger—anger which conceivably might be directed, in our present state of disillusionment and uneasiness, into constructive channels.

Nineteen-Forty

Nineteen-Forty: Our Finest Hour. By Arthur Mee. London: Hodder and Stoughton. 5/- net.

ARTHUR MEE'S book is not a history of 1940. It is a series of essays written as the year progressed, in days of hope, of fear, of success and of failure. The chapters are not obviously chronological, but it is preferable to read them in the order in which they appear. They have a sermon-like quality, and their note is strictly Christian.

"Big Business" and the War

An Appeal for a Planned Society

Rats. By the Pied Piper. London: Gollancz. 5/- net.

THE spectacle of a democracy at war draws forth at once both our reluctant admiration and considerable amazement. The contrast between national unity in the face of a foreign foe and pre-war disagreements in the face of serious economic and other disorders in the body politic at home is always most striking.

Too often the slow but sure methods of achieving democratic consent are quite unfitted to the technique of modern warfare, there is an intervening period marked by confusion of thought and much misguided and misdirected activity. This is an essential concomitant of the democratic processes of thought, and the strength of a democracy is shown, not in the capacity of an individual leader, but in the ability of the great mass of the people to comprehend the issues involved, to formulate broad principles of policy, and to enforce their viewpoint on their appointed leaders.

A magnificent example of this development of democratic thought has been given to us by the United States, where the Lease and Lend Bill was passed, not at the dictate of President Roosevelt, but at the demand of the overwhelming majority of the American people, the President keeping himself in the background at the important psychological moment.

But if we admire the new-found national unity which must be based on full and free information, we are also amazed at the fumbling and blundering which occurs in the early stages of re-orientation.

The democracy which, realising its errors, can publicly avow them, permit public discussion and widespread criticism, is by no means a decadent democracy. It is, in fact, proudly living up to the highest democratic standards

"Rats," by the Pied Piper, is chiefly concerned with big business. Big finance and the profits they are making, or might be allowed to make, from the war.

The author has cast his net widely and produces one incredible allegation after another. That there is another side to many of the cases we have no doubt, but we are equally certain that enough still remains to make this book of interest to all concerned with the well-being of democratic countries.

It would seem as if the various democratic governments of the world will have to appoint consultants whose sole task is the protection of individual citizens from the onslaught of predatory capitalists.

The "Pied Piper" is a socialist and concludes his book with an appeal for a planned society, but, whatever may be the reader's political opinions, he is bound to sympathise with much of the criticism to be found in these pages.

London in the "Blitz"

The Londoners. By James Parish. London: Hamish Hamilton. 2/6 net.

THIS book is a narrative version of Mr. Parish's well-constructed radio play of the same name.

It is the story of a group of people in London in one night of the "blitz"—their comedies, their tragedies, their hopes and their fears. And, from what we know of things in London at the present time, it is obvious that Mr. Parish has been drawing his characters and incidents very close to life.

There is real drama in London to-day—drama that will live on long after the war is over. Mr. Parish has caught an interesting aspect of it and has written a narrative that will stir the imagination to an admiration of Londoners under fire.

War Prophecies That Came True

Great Prophecies About the War. By Clarence Reed. London: Faber and Faber. 2/6 net.

THIS brochure has a sufficiently-alluring title to secure for it a big sale. "Great Prophecies About the War" gives a very readable summary of the history of the better known predictions relating to wars in Europe and war menaces from early mediæval times until the present.

Now, when so much of Europe, its seas and air over it are fraught with fiercest strife, one can only earnestly hope that the two well-known writers on astrology, to whom the author refers as fixing on next September for the end of hostilities may have their beliefs confirmed. But astrology, as most people know, is a word that means dubious happenings. We can only observe the Asquith advice: "Wait and See."

The writer tells with historical accuracy of the predictions, notably those made by spiritual writers, during the last four hundred years, which have been verified to the letter. Convinced as he shows himself of the truth of the predictions about the 1914-18 war, he mentions the famous French priest, St. John Vianny, known far and near as the Curé d'Ars, who foretold the World War as far back as 1880. The creation of Yugoslavia in 1866 by a Serb named Mata was another remarkable example of vaticination. Irish readers will find interest in the publication from its references to the prophecies of St. Malachy, and the aptness of his brief Latin phrases in foretelling the character of the reigns of successive Popes. As people of to-day are aware, they pithily described from the time of Pius X., in 1914, until the death of Pius XI., in 1939, the moral and physical suffering of the world. The words, "religio depopulato," were assuredly verified in the Pontificate of Benedict XV.

Altogether, a book which should interest the people of every war-afflicted country in Europe.

PARISH COUNCILS

The following letter has been addressed to Parish Councils by The Minister for Industry and Commerce.

"The Government announcement in the Press of the 1st instant stated that a serious shortage of imported fuel must be anticipated and provision made accordingly for the winter of 1941/42. It is consequently vitally necessary that your Council take steps immediately to ensure that turf will be available to meet the entire fuel requirements of your parish for the winter of 1941/42. The important problem, at the present time, is to take such steps now as will lead to a greater quantity of hand-won turf being cut this season than at any other time in the country's history. The situation is one of real emergency, and it is fortunate that the Parish Council organisations are in existence to give their assistance in coping with the situation.

"Parish Councils situated in the turf-producing areas should endeavour to secure that every cutter in the parish is employed, that every face bank is utilised, and that at least two crops are cut from every face bank this season. There cannot be too much turf produced, and the announcement already referred to states that the Government will take steps to ensure a market for all surplus turf of good quality offered for sale. Parish Councils can help turf producers by organising the provision of slanes and barrows, where necessary. The equipment required for turf is small, and no one who is capable of producing should, for want of this equipment, be prevented from doing his share. Farmers, who normally use their banks for their own supplies only, should be approached with a view to securing that a second crop will be cut this season for sale.

"Parish Councils in rural areas which do not produce turf, but are within reasonable distance of producing areas, should endeavour to provide for the needs of their locality by arranging with the producers in the turbary areas to cut turf this season for them. It is suggested that each Council should appoint a small body to act as a Fuel Committee, if this has not already been done, and that this body should carry out the organisation work already indicated and should take a census now of the fuel needs of the parish.

"In towns adjacent to bog districts Parish Councils will be able to assist the general effort, but in a different way. Such Councils should urge coal merchants to arrange by contract with producers, or by direct production in suitable cases, for securing large quantities of hand-won turf in the adjacent turf-producing districts, and to take the maximum quantities possible into stock when the first cutting becomes available. As an example of what might be done, one Parish Council last year secured cutting rights on a bog, subscribed the necessary money to employ labour to cut turf, and at the end of the season distributed turf to the subscribers in proportion to their subscriptions. It may be possible to arrange for fuel merchants and those whose business will be adversely affected by the absence of coal to take up directly the production of turf, and fuel merchants should be approached with this object in view.

"At present, many factories throughout the country are operating on turf. Parish Councils should urge factory managements to make suitable arrangements to secure their fuel supply from the bogs, and thus prevent any interruption of their activities.

"Parish Councils will appreciate that, in the emergency which has arisen, they must rely on their own resources. The need for prompt action is so urgent that parishes must take the initiative and themselves organise the preparation of the face banks now.

"In conclusion, I am to emphasise once more the vital urgency of the fuel problem. Next to the production of food, there is no more vital need than the production of fuel. This is the first major effort asked of Parish Councils, and the Government confidently appeals for your enthusiastic co-operation."

NOTICE

GRAIN IMPORTERS

(EIRE), LIMITED.

OFFER A LIMITED quantity of Canadian Wheat, known as Manitoba No. 1, for direct cash sale to farmers for sowing purposes, at 52/6 per barrel of 20 stones, ex store at Dublin, Cork, Limerick, Sligo and Waterford, sacks included. The wheat is mainly of the Canadian variety "Marquis," and is of satisfactory germination. Previous trials of similar wheat in this country have shown it to be suitable for the lighter soils, maturing early, but giving a somewhat lighter yield than that obtained from the varieties usually grown in this country.

Farmers will be required to send with their order a certificate from the Instructor in Agriculture or Assistant Agricultural Overseer for their district, that he is satisfied that the wheat is required for seed purposes. A remittance for the cost of the seed must also accompany the order.

Two or more persons in a district may combine to purchase their seed requirements, but the necessary certificate in respect of each farmer and a remittance covering the total cost of the combined orders must be sent.

MISS GODFREY'S PICTURES

Miss Phyllis M. Godfrey has been busy since her last show in September, 1939. She opened yesterday an exhibition of fifty-four paintings in oil and water-colour at the Dublin Painters' Gallery, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. Many of the views are scenes from her homeland, County Sligo, and from other Western counties. The artist has freely indulged her affection for tree-life in dells and hills in the neighbourhood of lakelands. She has painted scenes as far apart as Achill and Arklow. One of the artist's best efforts is the attractive No. 3, "In Harbour," where is depicted a cluster of fishing boats, with their bare masts in shimmering reflections in the water foreground. In No. 4, "On the Canal," bright autumn reds and yellows make a nice picture. No. 1, "Autumn in Sligo," and No. 17, "Sun and Shade," on the same wall, are noteworthy works.

What Next?

Europe has not yet recovered from the surprise with which it learnt on Thursday morning that there had been a coup d'état in Yugoslavia; and in most of the capitals the newspapers have adopted an attitude of reserve pending more detailed information. Certain facts, however, have been established beyond yea or nay. Mystery continues to surround the whereabouts of Prince Paul, who was Senior Regent, and has disappeared with his wife; but Monsieur Tsvetkovitch, the former Premier, and several of his Ministers are under arrest. In the middle of the night a party of soldiers called at the homes of the Premier and his Ministers, and removed them to prison with remarkably little fuss. When the inhabitants of Belgrade woke up in the morning the coup was an accomplished fact. During the forenoon a special Service was held at the Orthodox Cathedral. Services also were held in Roman Catholic churches in order to give the Croats a chance to declare their allegiance to the King and his new Government; and before lunch-time all Yugoslavia was rejoicing. General Simovitch, who has been charged by the King with the conduct of affairs, is a soldier who never has been identified particularly with any political party. He has formed a Cabinet representative of all shades of opinion in Yugoslavia, and even has included Dr. Matchek, the veteran leader of the Croats, who retains the position that he occupied under Monsieur Tsvetkovitch. There seems to be no doubt at all that the change of Government is exceedingly popular throughout the country. Fervid demonstrations of loyalty are reported from all parts of the kingdom. The streets of Belgrade and other cities were packed throughout Thursday with cheering crowds; and, although everything seems to have been carried out with unexpected order, certain students overstepped the bounds in places. For example, they set fire to the headquarters of the German Tourist Association in Belgrade; and a spokesman of the Wilhelmstrasse announced yesterday that a protest had been lodged in Belgrade against "anti-German excesses," positive news of which had been received in Berlin. There seem also to have been demonstrations against the Italians, against whom the Yugoslavs have had a bitter grievance since the forcible seizure of Fiume by Gabriele d'Annunzio; but Rome, like Berlin, has taken up an attitude of extreme caution. The reason for the overthrow of the Tsvetkovitch Government leaps to the eye; yet so far there has been no official statement on the matter. The people of Yugoslavia objected to the signature of the Tripartite pact. They were supported in their protests by the army, which always has represented the popular point of view among the Serbs; and the arrest of the former Premier was as clear an indication of General Simovitch's attitude as any pronunciamiento could be.

One of the new Government's first steps was to allow it to be understood that the change of administration was a matter of purely domestic concern, without any direct bearing on foreign policy. According to well-informed reports from Belgrade, some of the Serbian Ministers were in favour of an immediate and formal denunciation of the Tripartite Pact; but Dr. Matchek, who is an astute politician as well as a passionately loyal Croat, objected to this proposal. His argument was that, in the case of invasion, the Croats would be required to bear the brunt of the attack, and he counselled a policy of more or less masterly inactivity, leaving the Germans and Italians to make the first move. It was stated in Belgrade yesterday that Yugoslavia proposed to return to her former policy of absolute neutrality; but, evidently, the new Government does not propose at the moment to make any positive move in respect of the Tripartite Pact. Germany's attitude seems to be logical enough. According to Berlin spokesmen, a treaty was signed by the Yugoslav Government in Vienna, and the fact that a new Government has come to power in Belgrade affects in no way the validity of that instrument. For that reason, no special representations have been made in Belgrade by the German Government. According to Yugoslav authorities in London, on the other hand, no international instrument can be binding upon Yugoslavia until it has been ratified by both Houses of the national Parliament. Which, if either, point of view is correct is a question for the international jurists to decide. Actually, it is a matter of no importance. Nobody in Europe to-day cares two straws about international law. Every "law" that ever was drafted has been violated a score of times during the past few years, and the only thing that seems to matter now is reality. The truth is that Yugoslavia, in fact, if not by law, has repudiated the action of those Ministers who went to Vienna at the beginning of the present week. The vital question now is: what will Germany and Italy do about it? The Yugoslavs are prepared to defend their independence in arms. Monsieur Ninchitch, the new Foreign Minister, who has been out of active politics for some years, is an old friend of France and Great Britain, who was prominent during the last war. Yesterday General Simovitch had an interview with the Turkish Minister in Belgrade, and during the last forty-eight hours there have been numerous displays of public sympathy with Greece throughout King Peter's realm. Everything depends upon Herr Hitler. He may decide to make the best of what the "Axis" Powers must regard as a bad job, and abandon any idea that he may have had of a thrust towards Salonika through the Vardar valley. On the other hand, he may refuse to allow his plans to be impeded by a nation for which all Germans profess contempt, in which event a war in the Balkans will become inevitable. No doubt, the Yugoslavs are quite sincere in their desire to maintain an absolute neutrality; but in these strange times the desires of small nations are of no importance. Military strength is the only thing that counts.

North Down

It is a long time since the official Unionist Party in Northern Ireland lost a seat at a by-election. The result of this week's contest in North Down, which Alderman Thomas Bailie, the Independent Unionist candidate, has won by a majority of over 1,000 votes—out of a total poll of some 11,000—over his official Unionist opponent, Major Robert Workman, has come as a surprise to most people; and the surprise is greater because North Down always has been conspicuously loyal to the late Viscount Craigavon and his circle. To be sure, people on this side of the border will argue that "official" and "independent" Unionists are merely Tweedledum and Tweedledee; scratch one, they say, and you find the other. That is true, no doubt: on matters fundamental to Northern Ireland, such as the question of reunion with the twenty-six counties, the Unionists of both vintages are equally implacable. Nevertheless, a difference exists, though it was more conspicuous before the war than it is to-day. There can be no question that the 21-year-old Government at Stormont has been a source of discontent to thousands of Unionist voters. It has been just a little too conservative, just a little too steadfast, just a little—dare the word be used?—too "loyal." Many of its supporters would have been pleased to see some indication, however faint, of a desire for rapprochement with the twenty-six counties—even some expression of good-will that should go beyond the chilly phrases of convention—but no such indication or expression ever has made itself manifest. It is not, however, the Northern Government's unyielding hostility to the rest of Ireland that has been the chief cause of its unpopularity. There are two more serious charges against it. In the first place, it has not been a worthy champion of Northern Ireland vis-à-vis Great Britain. The province's financial relations with Whitehall have been always unsatisfactory, from the Northern point of view; and to-day the cry is raised, with a great deal of justice, that the six counties are not getting their due share of war work, and that, while formerly impoverished areas in England, Wales and Scotland are humming with new industry, the North remains in a "depressed" condition. Under Mr. Andrews's new leadership the Government seems to have taken an interest in this problem and Sir Basil Brooke is pleading the six counties' case in London. The second charge against the Northern Government is that it has waxed fat and complacent. It can do, or can omit to do, whatever it pleases; and all criticism is answered with the plea: "You must not criticise us, because you thereby will weaken the Unionist cause, and our enemies across the border will seize the opportunity to incorporate you in a Dublin Parliament." It was on such a plea that the late Lord Craigavon broke his independent Unionist opponents at the last two general elections; but it is an argument that tends to lose its appeal when the election is over.

Potatoes

Some time ago an article appeared in this newspaper commenting upon the many attractive forms in which potatoes can be prepared for the table. The threat of a wheat shortage, in particular, has made many good housewives put on their thinking caps to discover what substitutes are available, and, as the country produces more potatoes than any other kind of vegetable food, the potato, naturally, is the first possible substitute that comes into their heads. Despite all the derogatory remarks that have been made during the last decade or so about "starchy foods"—and potatoes were allotted a greater share of the abuse than any other farinaceous item in the diet—most people had a sneaking feeling "deep down" that the old-fashioned potato, on which their parents and their grandparents before them had seemed to flourish so robustly, was not quite such rubbish as many of the new-fashioned dieticians were describing it. It had become the victim of a fad; yet, despite instinct and commonsense, it took a European war to make the majority of the inhabitants of these islands realise that the potato was not just food for pigs, but a highly nutritious food for human beings as well. There is no shortage of potatoes either in Great Britain or in Ireland. We have not the figures of production across the Channel, but Mr. de Valera told the Dail recently that the Irish crop in 1940 amounted approximately to 3,119,500 tons. Most of us are used to potatoes in three forms—boiled, mashed or chipped; and a few of the more discerning eat them baked in their jackets—but recent letters which have appeared in the newspapers have shown that there are housewives in Ireland who can serve them up in nearly a dozen different forms and disguises. It seemed a record not likely to be surpassed, but a special correspondent of The Times now tells how he lunched at the Ministry of Food in London the other day, when a large party of politicians, journalists and distinguished people sat down to a meal of fifteen dishes. There seems to have been every course from soup to savoury. The dishes all had attractive names—like Jack-in-the-Box, piccaninnies and sunset salad—but they all could have been described by the one word, "Potatoes," and by appearances, at any rate, there was not a chipped or a mashed one among them. People are invited to go to the Ministry to view similar dishes or to write for recipes, and several luncheon counters are to be opened where Londoners will be able to buy—and it is hoped that they will buy—meals that consist entirely of potatoes in some form or other. When our neighbours across the Channel tackle a job they certainly tackle it thoroughly. The Ministry of Food has decided that people must eat potatoes so that other less easily obtained foods may be conserved, and the effect of its imaginative policy will be probably that people not only will turn over to potato diets, but will like them very much. We have no great hope that potatoes ever will appear in more than their customary forms on the average Irish table—even though, as Dr. Ryan prophecies, we soon may be eating them three times a day. As a race we are curiously disinterested in the culinary art; but, if some of our restaurateurs could see their way to introduce as a "novelty" in their menus some of these new potato dishes, they might be doing a very useful piece of propaganda. People, here as well as in Great Britain, must eat more potatoes, and they might as well get all the enjoyment that is possible out of the experience. They certainly will derive benefit from it. Food, although in Ireland we are inclined to overlook the fact sometimes, is meant to be a pleasure as well as a necessity.

LONDON LETTER

FUTURE OF BRITISH POLITICS

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

THE remarks of Mr. Churchill yesterday regarding the future of British politics will be given much attention, since they clearly demonstrate an intention to carry on with a National Government during a period of reconstruction which must be faced in the days to come. The Conservative Party gave up all that it could, and is prepared to continue with its sacrifice, but it calls for co-operation and cohesion by the other great parties. It is true that Liberalism counts for but little at present, but it may recover in time, when its services will again be valuable to the State. The Labour Party is in a different position, however, and already split into sections, and when the time comes for a general election it will be impossible to forecast its future. This suggests that Mr. Churchill is correct in calling for a continuation of the present form of government as long as it is deemed necessary.

King Peter of Yugoslavia

Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, widow of King Alexander, who was assassinated in France some years ago, lives in a country cottage in England. The young King Peter also received his earlier education in England, and had a Scottish governess and an English nurse. Since he succeeded his father his studies have been supervised by an English tutor, the result being that he speaks English perfectly, and has a love of British sports. His two young brothers are being educated here now. It is overlooked by many people that King Peter is a descendant of Queen Victoria, being her great-great-grandson, and a godson of the King. In taking the royal power into his own hands the young King may be enabled to keep his country neutral in the war, though this is regarded as doubtful in Yugoslavian circles here.

Registration of Women

The primary purpose of the registration of women in Britain is to obtain accurate details as to the number who may be regarded as available for war-work. At present there is a lack of definite information on this point, as women are employed in so many varied jobs that it has not been possible to keep count of them. Many are now performing duties previously carried out by men who are serving in the forces, and they are keeping the positions going in order that the men may return to them in due course. It is difficult to estimate the number who are employed in this manner, but more accurate information is available regarding the number in the women's branches of the Services, in the land army, and performing nursing and similar duties.

Registration is the only means of ascertaining with any degree of accuracy the number who may be considered as eligible for war-work or for transfer from one occupation to another more directly connected with the British war effort.

A Railways Problem

The greatest traffic problem of to-day, so far as the railways are concerned, is that of the quick turning round of railway trucks, and where there are shortages of coal and other goods it has been found that these are due to lack of transport. A railway truck spends on an average one-third of its time travelling from one centre to another, and the remaining two-thirds in being loaded or unloaded, and it is maintained by authorities that, by shortening the latter periods, thousands of trucks could be giving a better service. That such is not the case appears to be due to the lack of workers in some degree, but mainly because there is no scientific arrangement whereby individual firms and the people responsible for loading cooperate. This is a matter which may be remedied in the near future, since it is now appreciated that it is important.

Chinese Matches

Trade between Britain and Japan has fallen off during the past few months, but this is not the case with China, and commercial transactions with Britain are still being maintained, despite shipping difficulties. It is understood that exports from Britain, especially materials for the improvement of railway transport, are on quite a good scale, while in turn China is exporting to Britain a variety of goods not previously sent here. These are of good quality, and include matches of the safety kind, but rather smaller than used here. The cases in which they are shipped are of strong wood with a zinc lining, so that they are damp-proof and arrive in good condition. These matches are produced by United States companies, and the trade may develop sufficiently to make good the supplies which in former days came from Scandinavia and Belgium.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Plots are Popular

If the City Manager and other public-spirited citizens complain with reason of the anti-social action of certain owners of land who will not give lettings for cultivation, no charge of this kind lies against the Dublin Corporation itself.

And from what I hear no hint of delay or of unnecessary red-tape on the Corporation's part would be justified.

In several of the Corporation housing areas in which there have been open grass spaces it has hastened to co-operate with its tenants or tenant-purchasers to further the good campaign. An example may be seen at the Croydon Park and Marino estates at Fairview.

Some readers will be aware that these estates were let out in allotments in the war of 1914-1918, and in the following decade became a good-sized new town.

Energetic Housewives

In this area, it seems, the housewives are even keener on cultivation than the men are. I dare say the scarcity and dearness of onions and other vegetables act as spurs to this activity.

At all events, ladies in some of these streets organised a campaign in which they secured the signatures of all householders to a petition for the temporary breaking-up of the local idle land. The Corporation lost no time in responding, and now each householder has an addition to his garden.

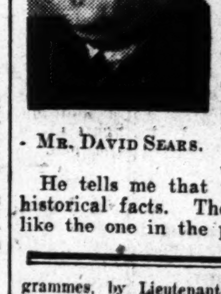

Having got their land at a nominal rent, the ladies have set their husbands and sons to work with spade and fork, and in the evenings sit back and contemplate the work with satisfaction.

I am sorry to hear that wire fencing put up by cultivators has disappeared overnight, but, no doubt, an antidote for that will be found.

"The Forced Marriage"

My friend David Sears is a critic with the courage of his convictions; for a new play of his is to be presented at the Gaiety next week. It takes a bold man to write critiques of other people's plays for several years and then expose himself to payment in kind!

But David should be hardened to the ordeal by now. This is his fourth play to be produced by Hilton Edwards and Micheál MacLiammoir, and, if it is as popular as his previous three, he should have nothing to fear.

MR. DAVID SEARS.

I remember particularly "Grania of the Ships," which was first produced at the Gate several years ago. But "The Forced Marriage," as the new play is entitled," is his first attempt at comedy, and he has picked for his subject a rollicking, lighthearted tale of 17th century Dublin.

He tells me that the plot is based on historical facts. Thousands of marriages like the one in the play took place after the Battle of the Boyne, when the Irishmen who had backed Stuart had no way of regaining their lands but by marrying into the family to which King William had given their property.

How David Sears finds time to write plays is beyond me; for his journalistic job is not a particularly easy one, and he is a big noise in the L.D.F. as well. Perhaps, he will take a bow in uniform on Monday night.

The Toll Gates of Dublin

A few days since (writes a correspondent) I chanced to come across an interesting relic of olden times in the shape of a sheet displaying the charges levied on various commodities passing through the toll-gates of Dublin. The tolls appear to have been quite moderate, though, no doubt, those paying them may have thought them heavy enough. They usually ranged from the contemptible farthing to threepence.

The toll on a sack of potatoes was ½d., and on a hogshead of wine 3d. To bring a tub of butter through the toll-bar involved a charge of 1d., and if it was a crock of 10lb. or upwards the charge was 2d. A sheep was admitted for a farthing, and a lamb, goat or kid could not be got in for less. The toll for a kish of Kilkenny coal was 1d.—the "kish," it may be explained, was a large wicker basket used for this and other purposes.

A car-load of apples or other fruit was charged 2d., and a car-load of cheese had to pay toll to the amount of 3d. Turnpikes on public highways were often unduly numerous—occurring usually every six or seven miles—and were primarily intended for the maintenance and repair of the roads, but in Ireland they were not a commercial success and were abolished by Act in 1857. A great part of the revenue of the city must have been derived from tolls which were levied on all kinds of merchandise carried into or from Dublin by canal.

About the mid-forties of the last century the tonnage on the Grand Canal alone was nearly 300,000 per annum, and the tolls on this reached upwards of £30,000. But the advent of railways caused this traffic to decline.

The Rebecca Riots

The turnpike system was not popular on the other side of the Channel, and the Rebecca Riots, which broke out in 1843 in South Wales, showed the unpopularity of the impost.

They arose from the exasperation of the people at the increased spread of toll gates on the public roads, and were so called from the rioters taking as their motto Gen. xxiv., 60, where it is said that the millions of Rebekah's posterity shall "possess the gate of those which hate them."

Bands of men, 500 strong, ranged the country at night, demolished the toll bars, and committed other outrages. The Government employed military force to suppress the rioters and appointed a commission to investigate their grievances. Measures of relief were granted, and those of the offenders who were caught were lightly dealt with.

QUIDNUNC.

25 YEARS AGO

From the Irish Times, March 29, 1916.

British Success at St. Eloi.

The communiqué issued in Paris yesterday afternoon reports "fairly great" activity west of the Meuse, in the region of Malancourt and in the sector at the foot of the heights of the Meuse. In Lorraine, by a coup de main, an enemy work was carried, its occupants being either killed or captured.

The Berlin report refers to fighting at close quarters in craters south of St. Eloi, where the British troops, as mentioned in yesterday's report, mined and captured certain enemy works.

The night French communiqué speaks of a violent bombardment, followed by a strong enemy attack on the Hancourt—Malancourt front. Successive waves of assault were repulsed, with heavy losses, by infantry fire.

South Africa and the War.

At the annual meeting of the Chamber of Mines yesterday—says a Reuter's Johannesburg telegram—the President, Mr. Dawe, reviewing the year's operations, said that South Africa had not fully realised how lightly war conditions had affected it. Owing to the unshaken supremacy of the British Navy they had been spared the trials and horrors of other countries. The Union was the youngest Dominion, but, young as it was, it had shown that the right spirit existed, and, according to its strength, was ready to bear its share of the Empire's responsibility. Dealing with the work of the mines, the Chairman said that the year's output was the highest actual output.

REJOICING IN BELGRADE

OATH TAKEN BY BOY KING

No Representations Yet By Germany

KING PETER THE SECOND, the boy King of Yugoslavia, took the oath at 10.45 yesterday, amid impressive scenes, at the Royal Palace, the Press Association states. The Serbian Patriarch, attended by members of the Holy Synod; General Simovitch, the Prime Minister, and all the members of the Government, as well as other high civil and military officials, were present.

The arrival of the King at the Cathedral for a solemn Service was greeted with tremendous cheering by an enormous crowd massed in the vicinity of the Cathedral.

At the conclusion of the Service the Patriarch delivered a speech, in which he expressed the unshakable fidelity of the people to their King.

The German Foreign Office spokesman denied, in Berlin yesterday, that any representations had been made in Belgrade about the policy of the Yugoslav Government, and expressed the view that the Pact signed by the previous Yugoslav Government did not need ratification to make it effective.

While, he added, the new Government's declarations contained nothing about its attitude to the Pact, the German Government had carefully noted Mr. Churchill's remarks.

THE KING'S OATH

As the King left the Cathedral the demonstration reached a pitch of enthusiasm which has never been surpassed in Belgrade. It seemed as though the whole of Belgrade had turned out to cheer the new King, who smiled and raised his hand in acknowledgment of the tumultuous greeting. Services of Thanksgiving were also held in other churches, notably in the Catholic Cathedral at Belgrade in the presence of all the Croat and Slovene Ministers. Before taking the oath King Peter lit a candle beside the Bible. Then, turning to the Patriarch, he took the following oath:

"I, Peter II., ascending the Throne of the Kingdom of Yugoslavia, and taking over the Royal power, swear by God Almighty that I will guard, above all, the unity of the nation, the independence of the State, and the integrity of its territory; that I will rule according to its laws and constitution, and that in all my endeavours I will ever keep before me the welfare of the nation. So help me, God."

The oath was received with cheers, after which the Patriarch gave his blessing, and General Simovitch and other Ministers then offered their congratulations to the King.

U.S. MINISTER CHAIRED

Describing the scene at the Cathedral, Associated Press stated:—As the British and American Ministers arrived at the Cathedral by car the cheering crowds broke the lines of police, in an attempt to shake and kiss their hands. The American Minister, Mr. Arthur Bliss Lane, and the United States Military Attaché, Colonel Fortier, were hoisted shoulder-high, amid shouts of "Long live Roosevelt."

The German and Italian Legations at this time were still guarded by troops.

Army officers packed the Cathedral and gave a rousing cheer for King Peter. The Patriarch, in gold and red robes, represented the Church authority, and Peter's action in kissing the cross signified the formal assumption of Royal power, which actually became his when the Regency Council resigned. It was not made clear whether this action would be known as the "Accession," but, in fact, this seventeen years old boy is now King of Yugoslavia.

THE CABINET'S DECISION

"FULL NEUTRALITY"

After a meeting lasting all night on Thursday, the new Yugoslav Cabinet decided to return Yugoslavia to "full and absolute" neutrality. Following a long talk between the Turkish Minister in Belgrade and General Simovic, diplomatic quarters circulated an unconfirmed report that the Turks had proposed a mutual assistance plan to Yugoslavia.

It was also reported that Dr. Matchek, the Vice-Premier and Croat leader, was in doubt as to whether he should remain a member of the new Cabinet, in which he occupies the position he held in the Tsvetkovitch Government. While the new Cabinet was believed to be demanding outright denunciation of the Pact signed by the former Premier, Dr. Matchek and other Croat Ministers were insisting that this course should not be taken.

They held that if the Pact were renounced Germany and Italy would march in, and that Croatia, bordering on Germany, would have to bear the brunt of the attack. Yugoslavia, they urged, should leave the matter where it stood, and wait for the Axis to make the first move.

YUGOSLAV OPINION IN LONDON

Yugoslav circles in London stated yesterday that under the Yugoslav Constitution any agreement with a foreign Power must be ratified by both House of Parliament before it can become law.

The Turkish newspaper, Vatan, in an article entitled: "Yugoslavia breaks the chains of slavery," is quoted by Ankara radio as saying that, by the Government change in Yugoslavia, that country's signature to the Axis Pact has been rendered null and void.

"It is not a good omen for the Axis that Germany should repeat in Yugoslavia's case the mistake Italy made concerning Greece," the newspaper concluded.—(Press Association and Associated Press.)

GERMANY MADE NO REPRESENTATIONS

BUT WILL PROTEST OVER INCIDENTS

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

BERLIN, Friday.

The German Foreign Office spokesman said to-day that Germany intended to protest to the Yugoslav Government against "anti-German excesses" in Yugoslavia, of which, he declared, "positive news has come to hand." He denied, however, that

REPORTED GERMAN NOTE

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

BELGRADE, Friday.

The German Minister, Viktor von Heeren, was reported authoritatively to-night to have delivered a Note to the Yugoslav Government protesting against the beating of Germans, and demanding a written answer on Yugoslavia's attitude to the Axis Pact signature.

It was understood that the answer given by the Yugoslav Premier this morning to Germany's "urgent request" regarding the Government's attitude was unsatisfactory."

To-night a note was said to have reminded Yugoslavia that the Axis Pact was binding.

any representation had been made in Belgrade about the policy of the Yugoslav Government, especially in view of the fact that it is not customary for a Government to throw overboard treaties made by its predecessors."

The spokesman expressed the view that the pact signed by the previous Yugoslav Government did not require ratification to make it effective. He pointed to the clause in the pact stating that it came into force on the day of signature.

He stated that the German Minister in Belgrade had had a talk with the new Yugoslav Foreign Minister, M. Ninchitch, but was not asked whether the conference had taken place in "an atmosphere of friendly understanding," the spokesman replied: "The subjects discussed are not known, and, therefore, such a view cannot be confirmed in Berlin."

MR. CHURCHILL'S REMARKS

The spokesman added that, while the declarations of the new Government contained nothing about its attitude to the pact, the German Government had carefully noted Mr. Churchill's remarks.

The spokesman's statement is typical of the extreme reserve which is being maintained in German official circles over events in Yugoslavia.

"MAN-IN-THE-STREET STUDIED"

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

ZURICH, Friday.

Stupefaction, says the Berlin correspondent of the Gazette de Lausanne, is the only word to describe the reactions of the German man-in-the-street to the Belgrade coup.

GERMANS TO LEAVE BELGRADE

BELGRADE, Friday.

It was learned here to-night that members of the German colony in Belgrade, except diplomats and those with urgent business, will be evacuated on Monday aboard the Danube steamer to Vienna.

The reason for the drastic step was not disclosed.

Quarters close to the Government declared to-night that there were indications that Germany would forego the use of military force against Yugoslavia, at least for the moment, in favour of attempts to weaken the nation through exploiting the old hatred between the Serbs and the Croats.

In Zagreb, Dr. Matchek was reported to be debating whether to remain in the Simovitch Cabinet.—Associated Press.

REPORTED RELEASE OF MINISTERS

BELGRADE, Friday.

It was reported to-night, but not confirmed, that the Government had released all the former Ministers of the former Government, except the Premier and Foreign Ministers.

The statue of the young King's grandfather, Peter I., was bombed by unknown persons.—(Associated Press.)

Mr. Ernest [illegible], British Minister of Health, on a visit to London, re-hoisted the flag at St. Pancras, said that, as a result of the centre yesterday, he was rendered homeless one wintry morning owing to the explosion of an unexploded bomb near his house.

THE BELGRADE COUP

FIRST EYE-WITNESS ACCOUNT

THE first eye-witness account of the scenes that took place in Belgrade on Thursday morning, when the Government was deposed and the young King assumed Royal power, is described to-day by the Special Correspondent of the Press Association in Belgrade.

EARLY MORNING ARRESTS

The bloodless revolution which on Thursday placed King Peter II. on the Throne of Yugoslavia six months before his legal coming of age was carried out with clockwork exactitude. The boy King assumed Royal power at two o'clock in the morning. This act was followed by the arrest of M. Tsvetkovitch, the Prime Minister, who signed the Tripartite Pact with the Germans; M. Cincar-Markovitch, the Foreign Minister, and other members of the Cabinet.

With the precision of machines, twenty privates of an infantry regiment, led by a Serbian officer, formed up outside the house of Dragisha Tsvetkovitch. Others, equally quietly and calmly, made the other arrests and occupied important strategic points. In an hour all was finished. The new régime was master of the situation.

GERMAN MINISTER REPORTED RECALLED

A Press Association telegram from Belgrade early this morning stated: Herr Heeren, German Minister in Belgrade, is being recalled by his Government, according to usually well-informed circles in Belgrade.

The leaders of the parties, to which belonged the Ministers whose resignations brought about the political crisis, were summoned from their beds by General Simovitch.

At 7 o'clock all Yugoslav radio stations broadcast the boy King's first proclamation to his people—a proclamation which was probably as important as any that he will be called upon to deliver in the course of his career.

CHEERING CROWDS

Less than an hour later crowds assembled outside the British Legation singing patriotic songs and carrying national flags. For more than two hours these demonstrations continued until a cordon of troops was drawn round the district, barring entry. Strong military guards were also posted to prevent access to streets in the neighbourhood of the Italian and German Legations in order to prevent any incident. A tank was placed in position in front of the German Legation. Enthusiastic scenes were enacted outside the Greek Legation, where the Minister was carried shoulder-high by demonstrators paying high tributes to the Greek Army and people.

In the meantime all the streets of the capital had become crowded with thousands of cheering people. Some formed themselves into processions and marched about waving flags, cheering King Peter and the Army, and demanding an alliance with Russia. Completely out of control by the police, they paraded the streets all day long singing and shouting. Although the implication of the morning's act was fully understood, the people were, in the words of the Serbian proverb, "Going to a wedding" rather than to war. Neither in 1912 nor in 1914 was there such enthusiasm and resolution. From 8 o'clock in the morning until late in the evening the sound of cheering in the streets never ceased.

28,859 KILLED IN AIR RAIDS

CIVILIAN FORCES IN BRITAIN

Figures showing the civilians' part in the war were given by Miss Ellen Wilkinson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Home Security, at Newcastle-on-Tyne yesterday.

Of civilian casualties she said: "These figures will be a good corrective against some of the exaggerated reports. So far the latest figures of civilians killed in air raids on Britain are 28,859, and seriously wounded 40,166. These are grave figures, but the number of soldiers killed in air raids on Britain is about one-fiftieth of that number."

"Figures of civilian forces in this country are really impressive. Up to December 31 the total for A.R.P. was 127,000 full-time and 924,000 part-time. There are 78,000 full-time A.F.S. and 170,000 part-time. In the police there are 30,000 on a full-time basis and 159,000 part-time. Casualty services had 250,000 spare and full-time members.

"This is a total of over 1,750,000. That is an enormous defence force, and, in addition, there are the fire-bomb fighters. All that has been built up and paid for by civilians."

REPORTED GERMAN ANXIETY

COMMENT ABOUT YUGOSLAVIA

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

BERLIN, Friday.

A statement in the Diplomatische Korrespondenz, official organ of the German Foreign Office to-night reflects the acute anxiety in German official circles over the turn of events in Yugoslavia. Replying to the semi-official Belgrade statement, that the revolution was a purely domestic matter that did not affect foreign policy, the statement says:—

"The anti-German riots in Belgrade do not support this view. Furthermore, British and American comment on events is highly significant: Both Churchill's statement and the American promise of aid for Yugoslavia show in what light Britain and the United States view the Belgrade revolution and its after effects.

Churchill particularly, intimated clearly that he does not regard it as a purely domestic matter. On the contrary, he refers to Yugoslavia as one of the auxiliaries of Britain.

"In Germany developments in Yugoslavia are naturally being closely watched."

Railway communication between Rumania and Yugoslavia has been interrupted since yesterday, states a Bucharest despatch to the Vichy News Agency.

R.A.F. RAIDS

BOMBS ON COLOGNE AND DUSSELDORF

NAVAL AND SUPPLY SHIPS ATTACKED

Successful attacks by British bombers on Cologne and Dusseldorf and on a long stretch of shipping, as well as smaller raids on the docks at Dunkirk and Calais, were described yesterday in the following British Air Ministry communiqué:—

"Many heavy bombs were used in attacks on Thursday night by aircraft on the industrial centres of Cologne and Dusseldorf. Good results were observed in spite of thick ground haze.

"At Cologne two large fires were seen near the railway goods yard. At Dusseldorf the flashes from the bursting bombs were clearly visible in the factory area to the east of the Rhine and near the main railway station.

"Attacks by smaller forces of the same command were made on the docks at Dunkirk and Calais.

"Three aircraft of the bomber command are missing.

"On Thursday aircraft made a number of harassing attacks on enemy shipping. The operations extended from the Frisian Islands to La Rochelle on the coast of Brittany.

"Naval vessels and supply ships were bombed and machine-gunned from a low level. A supply ship in the harbour at Alderney received direct hits.

"Brest naval base was also attacked during the night.

"Two aircraft of the coastal command are missing."

NO NIGHT RAIDS ON BRITAIN

BOMBER DOWN OFF BEACHY HEAD

London last night—the eighth night in succession—was without an "alert" up to a late hour.

No night raids had been reported elsewhere in Great Britain.

The City yesterday had its first daylight "alert" for eight days, when a small formation of raiding 'planes flew over the South coast, says the Press Association. Some of them reached the outskirts of the capital, but were quickly driven off, and the "alert" was brief.

There was little air activity overland during the day. One lone raider released bombs on a South coast town, destroying some houses. The casualties included three dead and a number of persons injured. The raider afterwards machine-gunned the town.

Yesterday's British Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communiqué stated:—

"Enemy air activity during daylight to-day has been on a small scale. Bombs dropped on a town on the South-east coast this morning demolished houses and caused a small number of casualties, including some people killed.

"An enemy bomber was shot down into the sea by our fighters south of Beachy Head.

"One of our fighters is missing from patrol yesterday."

DAMAGED IN RECENT RAIDS

It can now be mentioned that the following places have been damaged in recent raids:—The Law Courts and the Strand, London; Jack Straw's Castle, Hampstead.

CATTLE DISEASE PROSECUTION

DUBLIN MAN FINED MAXIMUM PENALTY

Christopher Reilly, 24 Arbour place, Dublin, was fined £20 by Mr. McCann in the Dublin District Court yesterday for failing and neglecting with all practicable speed to give notice to a member of the Guards that he had in his possession an animal affected with foot-and-mouth disease on March 18th at his premises, 24 Arbour place.

Mr. G. D. Murnaghan (instructed by Mr. D. Ua Donnchadha, Chief State Solicitor's Office), prosecuting, said that Reilly had in his yard on March 18th a cow which was affected with the disease, the symptoms of which must have been apparent on the previous day. He kept his cow in his yard in that condition for twenty-four hours at least, and when a veterinary inspector came and asked him whether he had any cattle, he said that he had not, but that he had sixty-nine pigs. Later that day the inspector returned and found the cow and two calves.

Mr. W. Hartnett, veterinary inspector, having given evidence bearing out the opening statement,

Reilly stated in evidence that he was a pig dealer, and kept one cow for his own use. His brother, Francis, looked after the cow and did the milking. He had seen the cow that day, but had seen no slavering from its mouth. When Mr. Hartnett called that morning he spoke to witness's father, but not to witness. It was on the second occasion that Mr. Hartnett spoke to him.

In reply to Mr. Murnaghan, he denied that he was trying to save his sixty-nine pigs by not reporting the case. He also denied that he told the inspector when he arrived in the morning that he had no cattle.

Mr. Hartnett, recalled, said that it was the father who brought him to defendant's yard and said that he had no cattle.

Francis Reilly, brother of the defendant, said that he looked after the cow and did not notice anything unusual about her.

The Justice said that he was satisfied that the defendant was well aware of the condition of the beast, and that he, his father and his brother attempted to conceal the fact that the cow was affected.

THREE MORE CASES OF CATTLE DISEASE

Three more outbreaks of the disease were confirmed yesterday—one at Harristown, St. Margaret's, Co. Dublin; one at Doon, Kilmacrenan, Churchill, Co. Donegal, and one at Finglas in the Dublin area.

The Minister for Agriculture has made orders, with immediate effect, prohibiting the movement of carcases, or portions of carcases, of cattle, sheep or pigs into the County Borough of Limerick, and out of the administrative County of Tipperary (North Riding). The orders do not apply to hides and skins.

In view of the serious nature of the present epidemic of foot-and-mouth disease, the Most Rev. Dr. McQuaid, Archbishop of Dublin, has directed that the prayers, "Pro peste animalium," be said as an "Oratio imperata" throughout the diocese, in all Masses when the Rubrics permit.

Mr. P. Belton, T.D., has given notice to move in the Dail that the Government be asked to explain why the foot-and-mouth disease appears to be spreading, and what steps they propose to take to cope with the epidemic.

BRITISH VIEW OF AFRICAN WAR

"END OF CAMPAIGN IN SIGHT"

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

CAIRO, Friday.

"IT is not unduly optimistic to prophesy that the end of the campaign in Italian East Africa is in sight," it was stated in British military circles here to-day. British casualties at Keren have been remarkably light, considering the scale of the operations.

MORE PRISONERS

While the final count of the Italian prisoners taken at Keren has not yet reached Cairo, it is said to run into "some thousands." A great deal of equipment was abandoned by the enemy in what the communiqué terms a "precipitate retreat," which is considerably more than a withdrawal."

General Sir Archibald Wavell, British Commander-in-Chief, paid a short visit to the Keren front just before the successful British attack. He discussed the situation with General William Platt, commanding the Sudan Forces, who had met him at Agordat. General Wavell left an hour before the British entry into Keren.

TRAIN GUNNED

A Middle East communiqué states: Yesterday the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railway was again heavily attacked by our bombers. Fifty miles to the east of Addis Ababa a troop train was machine-gunned and damaged. Aircraft of the South African Air Force successfully bombed an enemy camp, administrative buildings and entrenchments north of Lake Rudolph.

TWO DEAD MEN IN A BOAT

WASHED ASHORE ON THE SHANNON

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

KILRUSH, Friday.

WHAT was first believed to be a canoe on its way to Scattery Island, turned out to be a lifeboat containing the bodies of two sailors, when it drifted ashore early yesterday morning at Moneypoint, Caradotia, which is about four miles from Kilrush, on the Shannon estuary.

Sergeants Lallor and Kelleher, Kilrush, had the boat towed to Kilrush Harbour, where a thorough examination was made of its contents. Both men, who are believed to have been dead for about twenty-one days, were clad only in pants and light singlets, and were lying face downwards on the bottom of the boat. One would be about 46 years of age and about six feet, while the other would be about ten years younger and somewhat smaller.

There were no papers or documents found on the bodies. Also found in the boat were a pair of rubber sea boots, some biscuits and a barrel containing some water. The oars were missing, but the oarlocks were in the boat. The lifeboat is about 20 feet in length and is in a reasonably good condition.

An inquest was not deemed necessary, and both bodies were interred at the local cemetery.

'PLANE CRASH

Rear-Admiral and Nine Others Dead

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAPE TOWN, Friday.

Rear-Admiral G. W. Hallifax, Secretary to Lord Clarendon when he was Governor-General of the Union of South Africa, has been killed in an air accident in the Cape Province.

Nine other persons who were travelling in the same 'plane also lost their lives. The crash occurred at Elands River, in the Piquetberg district.

NORTH DOWN ELECTION

DEFEAT OF OFFICIAL CANDIDATE

Alderman Thomas Bailie, J.P., Bangor, standing as the Independent Unionist candidate yesterday, won the seat for North Down in the Northern Ireland House of Commons by a majority of more than 1,000 votes, the official Unionist candidate being Major R. Workman. The figures were:

Alderman Bailie	6,268
Major Workman	5,137
Independent majority.	1,131

Lord Craigavon, before his death, represented North Down, and this was the first contested election since the constituency was formed in 1929.

Census of Cropped Land Suggested

In a motion of which he has given notice in the Dail, Mr. P. Belton asserts that the Government has failed to make adequate provision for food supplies for man and beast in the coming year; he asks that a detailed census of land being cropped and to be cropped should be taken, and that any shortage revealed should at once be made good by the Government.

U.S. FACTORY STRIKE

15,000 WORKERS WALK OUT

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

NEW YORK, Friday.

Workers at the Johnstown, Pennsylvania, factory of the Bethlehem Steel Company, went on strike to-day just as the dispute at the parent plant at Bethlehem was settled.

About 15,000 workers, members of the Congress of Industrial Organisations, are involved in the walk-out, which was in protest against the election of workshop officers belonging to the rival American Federation of Labour.

In Washington Legislative circles there was a growing sentiment to give the Government greater power to force peaceful agreements between Labour and managements.

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

CHUNGKING, Friday.

COMBINED German-Japanese efforts against Britain and the United States in the Far East are believed here to form the main topic of discussion between Mr. Matsuoka and Herr Hitler. It is not thought, however, that Japan will make a southward drive at present.

Japanese concentrations of troops, warships and aircraft in the South Seas at the moment are insufficient to launch a large-scale attack against either the Dutch East Indies or Singapore, state Chinese circles. On the contrary, there are large concentrations of warships in Japanese home waters against a possible attack from the United States or Russia, it is added. The view is held that more important conversations will take place when Mr. Matsuoka returns to Moscow on his way home.

JAPANESE LANDING

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

TOKYO, Friday.

Japanese troops made a new landing to-day on the South China coast, about one hundred miles south-east of Hong Kong. An official announcement states that the troops landed under naval protection without encountering resistance from the Chinese, and advanced rapidly towards an undisclosed objective.

A landing was also made later at the strategic Chinese base of Lukfung, on the eastern coast of Kwangtung Province, which was reduced at noon, the official announcement adds.

GIFT FOR HERR HITLER

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

LONDON, Friday.

Mr. Matsuoka, Japanese Foreign Minister, and his entourage, were Herr Hitler's guests at a luncheon in the Reich Chancellery to-day. The luncheon was also attended by the Japanese Ambassador, Marshal Goering, Herr von Ribbontrop, Dr. Goebbels, German Army, Navy and Air Force chiefs, and other prominent personalities. At the end of the luncheon Mr. Matsuoka presented Herr Hitler with a gift of Japanese ironwork—the symbol of power and prosperity. Mr. Matsuoka also visited the German Minister of Economics and President of the Reichsbank, Dr. Funk. The German News Agency states that they exchanged views on the strengthening of German and Japanese economic relations after the victorious conclusion of the war.

BATTLE OF THE ATLANTIC

GENERAL SMUTS HAS NO DOUBTS

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

CAPETOWN, Friday.

General Smuts, the South African Premier, declared to-day that he had no doubts about the issue of the great battle of the Atlantic. America was 100 per cent. behind the war effort, and that was a guarantee of victory.

General Smuts said he had come across a passage by Abraham Lincoln at the time of the American Civil War. The passage was: "The struggle of to-day is not only for to-day, it is also for the vast future of man." That, General Smuts said, was the bull's eye.

"This is not a struggle for Poland, or for any small spot on earth or for to-day, but a struggle for the vast future of man."

General Smuts said: "The sun is shining. First America is 100 per cent. behind the war effort; second, the courage of Yugoslavia means that the battle of the Balkans is lost to Germany, because of the young boy, Peter—let's call him Peter the Great; third, Keren and Harar. Moreover, the battle of the Atlantic is a certain victory.

"I feel in my soul that Hitler and his gang have mobilised their forces for his inevitable end."

BRITISH SUBMARINE'S ATTACK

SUPPLY SHIP AND TANKER BELIEVED HIT

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

"H.M. submarine Parthian (Commander M. G. Rimington, D.S.O., R.N.) has made a successful attack on an escorted convoy south of Italy," stated the British Admiralty communiqué yesterday.

"A supply ship or troopship of about 6,000 tons and a large tanker of about 10,000 tons were hit by torpedoes. They were not seen to sink, as H.M.S. Parthian took drastic avoiding action to elude the counter-attack of the Italian escorts."

Last July the Parthian sank an Italian submarine. In August she scored two hits when attacking Italian cruisers and destroyers, and in January she sank a heavily laden supply ship of about 7,000 tons, also south of Italy.

GREEK SUBMARINE HITS SUPPLY SHIP

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

ATHENS, Friday.

The Ministry of Marine announced to-night:—"The Greek submarine Triton (under Commander G. Zepos) met a heavily escorted enemy convoy off the Albanian coast on March 23, and succeeded in destroying the 5,451-ton supply ship Carnia and seriously damaging one smaller vessel."

15,000-TON SHIP SUNK —BERLIN CLAIM

The Official German News Agency claims that a merchant ship of 15,000 tons was sunk by a direct hit from a German long-range bomber west of the Hebrides yesterday.

Another merchant ship of about 1,000 tons was bombed and sunk off the Bristol Channel, the Agency declares, while two merchant vessels totalling some 3,000 tons are claimed to have been attacked and severely damaged off the English south-west coast.—(Press Association.)

GAS ATTACK DANGER

MR. MORRISON GIVES FIVE RULES

MR. HERBERT MORRISON, British Home Secretary, in a broadcast last night, warned Britain that the threat of a gas attack, which the Germans may use as a last hope, has increased, and he also gave five rules which will transform a "deadly or even decisive weapon" into "little more than a serious nuisance."

Repeating his assurance that Britain would not be the first to use gas, Mr. Morrison said: "We know it to be contrary to the laws of war, we believe with profound conviction that it is also contrary to the principles of humanity and the decencies of civilised conduct."

Any suggestion that British defensive measures indicated that Britain would take the initiative he branded as "a black and intentional lie."

Reiterating the conviction that no confidence could be placed in German assurances not to use gas, Mr. Morrison warned:—"The increased threat of direct attack on this country which the present season brings involves an increased threat of a gas attack."

"If the enemy believes it to be to his military advantage to use gas, either in connection with military operations or against the civil population, he will use it—make no doubt of that.

BE PREPARED

"Neutral observers who should be in a good position to form an opinion have publicly said that Germany is making active preparations to use gas. Whether this is so I cannot say. What I can say is that it is absolutely essential for us to be prepared.

"Remember that against a defenceless or ill-prepared population the gas weapon may be deadly—it may even be decisive; but against a well-prepared population which knows exactly what to do and does it, gas can be rendered little more than a serious nuisance.

Mr. Morrison gave these five rules for safety:—

(1) Carry your gas mask always, at all times, in all places. Have it at hand, night and day.

(2) Make absolutely sure that it is in good order and repair.

(3) Practise putting it on quickly, confidently, without fumbling. Your life may depend on your ability to put it on in a matter of seconds.

(4) Practise breathing in it and getting thoroughly accustomed to its use.

(5) See that every member of your household does the same.

"Women especially should obey all these instructions," he said. "If they are caught in an attack without a mask some man will probably sacrifice his safety by offering them his own mask. Women will not risk causing such an injustice.

"This is an urgent task of war. I have told you the whole truth as frankly as I can. You know what to do and why. Do it."

PLANS TO MEET EMERGENCY

LABOUR PARTY'S RESOLUTION

MR. W. NORTON, T.D., presided at a joint meeting, yesterday, of the Parliamentary Labour Party, the National Executive of the Trade Union Congress and the Administrative Council of the Labour Party, at Leinster House, when a resolution was passed:—

Urging the Government in the present emergency to provide employment on schemes of national utility financed by State credits;

To insist on a greater area of land being utilised to avoid famine conditions this year and next;

To exploit to the fullest the coal and mineral deposits;

Plan large-scale development of bogs;

Prohibit the export of non-surplus foodstuffs and institute a rationing scheme to ensure equitable distribution;

To control prices and punish profiteering;

To increase benefits paid under various assistance and pensions Acts,

And to impose drastic taxation on unreasonable profits during the emergency.

Guild of Goodwill Goes On Growing

Mr. W. E. Wylie and Mr. A. P. Reynolds informed Press representatives yesterday that over 12,000 persons had now signalised their support of the Guild of Goodwill.

Mr. Wylie, further explaining the objects of the movement, said its purpose is to provide work. Everybody who is employed doing the work of the Guild will be paid at ordinary rates, with the exception of those directing the various activities. These will be businessmen, who, he hoped, would come forward to assist without remuneration.

He instanced the proposal to establish restaurants, at which meals would be provided at a very cheap rate. The object was two-fold: first to provide cheap food, and secondly, to provide employment. The producers of the food would be paid, as well as those employed in the actual work of the restaurant, managers, waiters, etc.

The same principle would apply to the other schemes which he and Mr. Reynolds had in mind, such as building, turf production and the like. In a word, the Guild was intended to provide work and render public services by providing commodities, which in the present time of stress were difficult to procure.

A number of public bodies and associations, including the Chambers of Commerce in Dublin, Cork and Limerick, have informed Mr. Wylie of their support of the "Guild of Goodwill." So also have the Dublin Mercantile Association Ltd., the Waterford Unemployed Men's Club, the Irish Jewellers' Association and the All-Ireland Anti-War Crusade.

The first trade union to offer its support is the Operative Plasterers' Trade Society (Dublin and branches). The general secretary of the society (Mr. Gerald Doyle), in a statement yesterday said that the executive had passed the following resolution: "That the Executive of the Operative Plasterers' Trade Society, Dublin, recognising the building industry as one of the key structures in the economic life of the cities and towns, pledges its full support to all efforts made in maintaining employment in all sections of the industry during the present national crisis."

TO AMEND SOCIAL EVILS

PROTESTANT CHURCHES TO CO-OPERATE

SUCCESS OF WEEK OF WITNESS

"WE, a meeting of a thousand people, drawn from the Protestant Churches in Eire, without compromise on the distinctive tenets of any faith, hereby express our desire to co-operate with all our fellow-citizens, irrespective of creed, in an endeavour to amend the social evils in our country."

This resolution was passed last night at the final "Week of Witness" meeting in the Mansion House, Dublin.

So many people attended the first meeting of the evening that, when every seat in the great Round Room had been filled, the crowd overflowed into the Oak Room, where the addresses were heard through loud-speakers, and hundreds more overflowed thence into St. Ann's Church, where a simultaneous meeting was arranged. The Archbishop of Dublin (the Most Rev. Dr. Barton) having addressed the audience in St. Ann's, hurried to the platform in the Mansion House, and the Rev. J. C. Breakey, Minister of the Abbey Presbyterian Church, as soon as he had finished his address in the Mansion House, replaced the Archbishop in St. Ann's.

THE CALL TO DUTY

Senator Sir John Keane, Bart., who presided at the Mansion House meeting, said that the object of this meeting, the last of a most successful series, was to arouse in people a sense of their duty to bring Christian principles into their everyday lives and doings. In this work all the Evangelical Churches had co-operated. It would be very imperfect if this call to duty were to be regarded merely as a comfort and consolation in these present times of stress and trouble. Certainly, many of them in these sad days had found increasing help in their religion. He hoped that it would not end there, but that religion would sustain them in the reconstruction of the world when the war was over. The only true foundations on which civilisation could be built to endure were the teachings of Christ and the Gospel.

They all hoped that the New Order in Europe would be based on equality and freedom, working through democratic institutions.

WAYS AND MEANS OF HELP

The Archbishop of Dublin said that a feeling had been born during this "Week of Witness" that if things in the world and in our own country were not as they ought to be, people should no longer sit back in their chairs and be content to blame the Government when all around them great social problems were waiting urgently to be solved. The meetings this week had led into paths which nobody had foreseen. People were anxious to render practical help and service in a time of crisis, and a meeting at which ways and means would be discussed would be held shortly. Those who wished to take an active part in the movement should send their names to him or to some member of the committee.

The world to-day felt that the whole foundations of society were trembling and cracking, and what the Churches had to proclaim was the same as Paul proclaimed long ago: "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved."

ONE SPHERE OF WORK

The Rev. J. C. Breakey, who spoke on "The Call of Christian Adventure," said that there was still plenty of adventure for the Christian worker, even in this country. Speaking of the practical Christian life, and the work that could be done for suffering humanity, Mr. Breakey said that behind almost every street in Dublin was a warren of noisome tenements, where men, women and children festered and rotted in places where a dog-fancier would not put his dog, and where a racehorse owner would not keep his horse. This was one sphere in which men and women were called to the Christian adventure. Many people would not be courageous enough—would be too shy—to go down into the slums and feed the hungry or nurse the sick; but there were in Dublin almost immumerable charitable organisations every one of which was in urgent need of helpers or financial assistance.

But there was not only necessity to feed the hungry and comfort the suffering. Christians were commanded also to cast out devils and preach the Gospel.

DRINK AND GAMBLING

Can any man look abroad in Ireland to-day, he asked, and not realise that what we require in Ireland most of all is a spiritual renaissance? Evidence of that need, the spiritual impoverishment of the country, is all too clear. Every year some £12,000,000 is spent on alcoholic liquor. Gambling has become a craze that has seeped into every strata of society, is boosted and encouraged by some of the highest in the State, and is decked up in every form to look like charity. Are these two things alone not responsible for much of the poverty and destitution so rife in our country to-day? Sense of conduct and conscience had fallen very low in Ireland at the present time.

Mr. Breakey appealed for a revival of interest in the Sunday school. Too often the teachers were too old or too young, or not sufficiently educated. There was work to be done in the Sunday schools by cultured Christian people.

EX-U.S. PRESIDENT'S HOPE

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

NEW HAVEN, CONNECTICUT, Friday.

The United States will sit at the world's peace table when the war ends, and may be able to speak with a more constructive and warning voice if the nation does not become further involved in the conflict, said Mr. Herbert Hoover, the former President of the United States. Mr. Hoover predicted: "Hate will again sit at the peace table at Versailles," and added: "I pray that America's sons will not be sent into this war. If our moral reservoirs are undamaged and economic resources still intact, we may be able to contribute something to restore a better world."

GREEK AERODROME BOMBED

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

LONDON, Friday.

A squadron of Italian bombers made a surprise attack to-day on an aerodrome at Agrinion, in Western Greece, according to a despatch from Albania to the Italian News Agency. It is claimed that the base was destroyed and that the Italian planes returned without loss. There was no trace of enemy fighters, it is added.

FOURTEEN YEARS IMPRISONMENT

SENTENCE ON DUBLIN CIVIL SERVANT

A CIVIL Servant attached to the Department of Defence, who was alleged by State counsel (Mr. Oliver Moriarty, K.C.) to be the Adjutant-General of an illegal organisation—Thomas Doyle, 49 Ellesmere avenue, Dublin—was sentenced to fourteen years' imprisonment by the Special Criminal Court in Dublin yesterday. He had been found guilty of having under his control at 11 Innisfallen parade 50 rounds of .32 ammunition, 11 rounds of .38 ammunition, 9 rounds of .44 ammunition, 85 rounds of assorted ammunition, 14 bomb detonator parts, 3 live detonators, and other component parts of ammunition; membership of an unlawful organisation; possession of incriminating documents; refusal to give his name and address, and refusing to give an account of his movements during a specified period.

In imposing the sentence, the President of the Court said that the Court had taken into consideration the fact that Doyle was a State servant employed in the Department of Defence, while at the same time he held an important position in an unlawful organisation which had for its purpose the disruption of the State that he had been paid to serve loyally.

State counsel said that at the house at which he lodged Doyle was known as "Mr. Collins." Three persons at that address—49 Ellesmere avenue—had been convicted of serious offences before the Court recently. Doyle joined the Civil Service in the Department of Local Government in 1933 and was loaned to the Department of Defence in September, 1939; his salary was £3 9s. per week. The prosecution submitted that he was the connecting link between the members of an illegal organisation.

Detectives testified to making searches at 11 Innisfallen Parade where they found the ammunition, and 53 Lower Camden street where copies of illegal publications and stationery bearing the heading of an illegal publication were found; at the latter address they also found a blotting pad, which, when held up to a mirror, revealed the letters "A.G." in several places. In the room occupied by Doyle at 49 Ellesmere avenue nine Ordnance Survey maps of the city and suburbs of Dublin were discovered, together with a number of booklets.

Evidence also was given by a detective sergeant who saw Doyle enter houses at Innisfallen Parade, Clonturk Park, Lower Camden street and The Rise, Mount Merrion, at all of which persons had been discovered who later appeared and were convicted by the Court.

When Doyle was interrogated by a Civic Guard Superintendent he refused to give his name and address or to give an account of his movements during a specified period, but said he accepted responsibility for the ammunition found at Innisfallen Parade and the documents found at Lower Camden street. The Superintendent told the Court that he produced letters from Doyle's personal Civil Service file and a number of despatches from an illegal organisation, initialled "A.G." to Doyle, and drew his attention to the apparent similarity of the writing. Referring to the despatches, Doyle said: "I am not admitting that it is my handwriting." When questioned about the Ordnance maps, Doyle replied that he had them "just to know the city."

FIVE YEARS FOR CARPENTER

A sentence of five years' penal servitude was imposed on Joseph O'Hanlon, a carpenter, of 11 Innisfallen Parade, Dublin, who had been convicted on Wednesday last of possession of a quantity of ammunition, possession of incriminating documents and membership of an unlawful organisation.

TRIAL DATE FIXED

James McGill, Patrick Joseph Murphy and Michael Clarke, all of Cuchullain terrace, Dundalk, who were charged a week ago with the possession of firearms and ammunition, again appeared before the Court when an additional charge of having assaulted Patrick Sullivan was preferred against them. April 7th was fixed as the date of trial of both charges.

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL PAST CHORISTERS' SOCIETY

Attention is drawn to the notice asking all past choristers of Christ Church Cathedral to communicate with the hon. secretary of the re-formed Past Choristers' Society. Two meetings have been held already, attended by past choristers representative of a long period, and a provisional committee was formed to arrange further meetings and define the aims of the society. It is the wish of this provisional committee to obtain the names and addresses of all past choristers, and all those who have not yet received notices of these meetings are asked to send their names and addresses on a postcard to the Honorary Secretary, "Coolronan," Sutton Cross, Sutton, Co. Dublin.

DEFENCE FORCES' ANNUAL MISSIONS

The annual Missions for members of the Defence Forces will open to-morrow with Mass, special sermons, Exposition and an Act of Consecration of Ireland to the Sacred Heart. There will be a full attendance of officers and men. There will be a Triduum at smaller posts and stations during Mission Week, and the exercises, conducted by parochial clergy, will conclude on Palm Sunday with the Papal Blessing.

LATE NEWS

U.S. PRESIDENT AND YUGOSLAVIA

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

WASHINGTON, Saturday.

President Roosevelt has sent the following telegram to King Peter of Yugoslavia:—"At this moment, when Your Majesty has assumed the full exercise of your Royal rights, powers and the leadership of a brave and independent people, I wish to share with the people of the United States in the expression of our sincere and genuine wishes for the health and well-being of Your Majesty and the freedom and independence of Yugoslavia.

"Furthermore, I extend the hope that the relations between your Government and the Government of the United States may be mutually beneficial in support of those principles of liberty and tolerance cherished by the Yugoslav and American peoples."

TURKISH OIL FIRES

ISTANBUL, Saturday.

It was reported early this morning that the stocks of oil companies near Istanbul were on fire. The cause of the blaze was not known.—(Associated Press.)

FRANCE AND GERMANY

PRESS ASSOCIATION.

BERNE, Saturday.

An emphatic denial that Germany had asked for bases in North Africa or that Germans were already installed there has been given to American journalists in a statement by Count de Brinon, the French Ambassador in Paris.

Count de Brinon stated that Britain had already lost the war and that France's wisest course henceforth would be to seek an understanding with Germany.

ARMAGH ARMS CHARGE

THREE MEN SENT FOR TRIAL

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ARMAGH, Friday.

At a Special Crimes Court in Armagh to-day, before Major McCallum, R.M., Patrick Pearse Vallely, James Gerrard Fields, Patrick Joseph Lyttle, Patrick Ryan, Lurgyvallen, all of Armagh, were charged with having at Ballycrummy, Armagh, on 19th March, 1941, in their possession, or under their control, two Webley revolvers, and 31 rounds of ammunition, with intent to endanger life or cause serious injury to property. There were also two other charges against them under the Explosive Substance Act.

Major McCallum refused informations in the case of Vallely, and returned the other three accused men in custody for trial at next Armagh Assizes.

I have often heard of land hunger. Can it be that ravenous rustics took away the plots and ate them?

In the old Brehon code the theft of land was regarded as a very serious matter. In gravity it ranked next to the theft of other people's wind, the filching of private shadows, and the sequestration without authority of communal sunlight. A miscreant found in possession of a missing farm was required to put it back where he found it. This done, he was instantly executed with the old-fashioned tuagh and interred in the bosom of his quondam plunder.

Not a little of the credit for our present scenery is due to foresight of those old law-givers. They discouraged sternly the larceny of mountains and gave no quarter to that despicable mediæval nuisance, the lake-thief. Moreover——

OBITUARY

MR. ROBERT CLAPPERTON

The death of Mr. Robert Clapperton, which occurred at his home, 96 Middle Abbey street, Dublin, yesterday, takes from business circles in Dublin and Belfast a genial personality and from the paper and printing industries one of its leading figures. A native of Penicuik, near Edinburgh, he belonged to a family that had been associated with paper-making for generations, and he himself served his apprenticeship in the firm of Alexander Cowen, Penicuik, of which his father was manager. As further preparation for his career, he studied for and obtained the first class certificate in paper-making of the City of London Guilds. The result was that, with the experience which he gained later in life, there was very little about the industry that he did not know. He came to Dublin about half a century ago as agent for a number of important paper firms, and subsequently became the representative of such firms as the Clyde Paper Mills, the North Wales Paper Mills, Messrs. Robert Fletcher and Co., Limited, and Messrs. Punch and Co., Limited, of Cork. As representing these firms, he came into personal contact with virtually every printing establishment in the four provinces, all of which were indebted to him for guidance and assistance in their periods of prosperity or difficulty.

During the last war Mr. Clapperton was managing director of the Clondalkin Paper Mills. His personality won him many friends in Dublin, and, indeed, throughout the country, but the feature of his character which impressed all those who had business association with him was his uprightness. He never used his great knowledge of the business to take an advantage for himself or for the firms he represented. Rather did he diffuse his knowledge among those who needed his assistance. He was generous to a fault and his charity embraced all those who needed help. Apart from his work, Mr. Clapperton's principal interest was in the game of golf. He played at the Grange, and there were few more popular members in the club.

THE VERY REV. TIMOTHY MURPHY, P.P.

The death occurred yesterday morning, at the Parochial House, Watergrasshill, Co. Cork, of the Very Rev. Timothy Murphy, for many years Parish Priest of Watergrasshill, and one of the oldest pastors in the Cork diocese. Father Murphy was aged 75. He was a member of a well-known Kinsale family. Educated in Kinsale, Cork, and the Irish College at Paris, he was ordained in 1893, and had served in Bantry, Enniskeane, Kilmurray and Cloughduv before his appointment as Parish Priest of Watergrasshill. Two of his sisters—the Rev. Mother Dympna and Sister Patricia, of the Mercy Order, Naas—were with him when he died.

PROSPECTS FOR WOMEN

The number of women prominent in their various professions spoke to the girls of St. Margaret's Hall School last night on the qualifications required and the suitability of girls for various types of work in Ireland to-day. The headmistress, Miss Elizabeth Purdon, introduced the speakers, whose views were as follows:—

Librarianship—Not a soft option as career. Few openings at present, but position might improve with time. —(Miss H. M. Hornsby, Ph.D., Library Staff, T.C.D.)

Gardening—Not many openings for girls.—(Miss Anne Walsh, Botanic Gardens, Glasnevin.)

Medicine—Girls choosing this profession should be prepared to face a great deal of hard work and enjoy doing it.—(Dr. Ella Webb.)

Nursing—Salaries seldom exceeded £100 a year, and prospects of making a large income were, therefore, non-existent.—(Miss Reeves, Matron, Steevens's Hospital.)

Other speakers included Miss Olive Purser, M.A.; Miss Murphy, and Miss T. Beere.

CHILDREN'S HOME SALE OF WORK

A successful sale of work in aid of Miss Carr's Children's Home, Northbrook road, Dublin, took place yesterday in the C.M.S. Hall, Molesworth street.

Mrs. Creed Meredith performed the opening ceremony.

Luncheons, teas and suppers were served.

The principal stall-holders were:—Plain and Fancy Work: Mrs. Grierson, Miss Watson, Mrs. Dobbs, Miss Mecredy; "Half-Hour Limit": Miss E. P. Warren, Miss Russell Stritch, Miss Nancy McWade, Miss Grey; "The Commissariat" (Christ Church Leeson Park): Mrs. Hamilton, Miss G. Murphy, Mrs. Fuller, Mrs. Newman, Miss Connellan; Household: Miss Myra Hatte, Mrs. Montgomery, Miss F. Graham, Miss Clare, Mrs. Stretton; White Elephant: Mrs. Stokes, Miss M. Guilgault; Children's Stall: Miss Ruth Watson; Easter Egg and Sweets: Mrs. Jackson, Dr. Shiela Kenny, Mrs. L. Carr Lett, Mrs. G. D. Findlater, Mrs. Fleming; Cakes: Miss Carr, Mrs. G. Carr Lett, Mrs. Knox Gore, Mrs. Ronald Baskin, Mrs. Sissions; Country Produce: Mrs. Matheson, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Hardman, Mrs. Wilson, the Misses Cuthbert; Refreshments: Mrs. W. H. Boyd, Mrs. Bewley, Mrs. Donald Boyd, Mrs. Denne Bolton and Mrs. Jameson.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A LEAD

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I enclose herewith cheques to the value of £5 as follows:—Dr. Collis's Fund £3, Meath Street Free Meals £1, Mendicity Institute £1, with the request that you will be good enough to transmit them to the respective treasurers.

I attended a meeting in the Mansion House last night, and was impressed with the necessity for the practical application of Christian charity to our terrible social problems. Among various suggestions made was one for special collections in all churches in the city during the next few Sundays, so as to provide immediate help to those who were suffering from hunger—especially the children. I would go further and suggest that boxes bearing appropriate notices should be placed permanently in prominent positions at all churches, so that the worshippers would always have an opportunity of helping in this work. The clergy could arrange to have the amounts deposited sent to the charitable organisations each week.

I feel sure the response would be generous and the help thus given provide a much-needed want.

I submit that, while charity is urgently required to meet the present need, it is essential that definite action be taken to provide work at decent wages for all our unemployed. There is plenty of urgent work of national importance waiting to be done. The labour is waiting, the materials are at hand—all that is necessary is those little slips of printed paper called "money." We see that millions can be provided for death and destruction, why cannot millions be provided for the purpose of giving health, life and peace to our starving people? Perhaps, some of your readers could answer this question, which is being asked so insistently on every hand.—Yours, etc., "HOPE."

Dublin, March 28th, 1941.

"A DREAM OF IRELAND IN THE COMING TIMES"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Mr. Wylie's proposals are a splendid contribution towards a beginning of the social reconstruction of this country, and as such I warmly welcome them.

Mr. Dempsey suggests that the attempt to deal with the impending crisis must not be left solely to the unemployed and those down in their luck, but should embrace in a special way the youth of the privileged classes. I endorse this heartily.

Where shall we turn for leadership in a national crisis if not to the young men in our universities? In continental Europe, university students have been always found in the forefront of national movements. Surely, the educated youth of Eire will not fail the nation in this grave crisis?

These young men have profited much by the sacrifices the nation has made to educate them. Gratitude at least demands an adequate return from them, and patriotism now adds its imperative call to national service. May I be permitted to implement Mr. Dempsey's suggestions as follows:—

It should be announced at once that all examinations must be postponed until after the harvest of this year. Every male student must register in his college for national service on the land or in the bog. The local authority where the student resides should be notified accordingly; as far as possible, a student should be found work in his own county. No student should be eligible to present himself for the autumn examinations unless he can produce satisfactory evidence that he has spent three complete months on such national service. Students should be allocated to various farms, to survey, or otherwise work on various bogs, through the agency of the local authority. The details of their accommodation could be arranged through local councils, or, if set to work in groups, by direction of the State. The State would, perhaps, pay these young men cigarette money or a nominal sum.

No student should be allowed to fulfil his national service on his father's farm and should be disciplined by working under strangers. This is vital. Discipline through self-sacrifice is an essential element in Mr. Dempsey's proposal.

Noblesse oblige. Which one of the Colleges—T.C.D., U.C.D., U.C.C., or U.C.G.—will accept the privilege of national leadership? It must be brought home to our privileged youth that in the impending grave national crisis country comes before self, and that food, fuel and human life are much more valuable than degrees or diplomas. Incidentally, their families will receive also a useful lesson.—Yours, etc.,

"AN OLD GRADUATE."

Co. Dublin, March 28th, 1941.

"FACING THE FACTS"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—Jealous, disgruntled people—aided, I am sorry to say, by the Press—urge the stoppage of private motoring, simply because they have not provided against the rainy day which was inevitable if the war should be prolonged.

Is it a sin that people should have had the foresight to stock petrol which they had legitimately procured and paid for? Whether afterwards, when petrol was no longer obtainable by coupon, they gave it away, sold it, or proceeded to use it themselves seems to me to be nobody's business. Everybody knows that after the stoppage petrol could only be obtained from the pumps by coupon, otherwise private motorists could only have kept running by means of legitimately conserved stocks, or from supplies received from people who had wrongly been given petrol licences by the Government, such as doctors not in outside practice, clergy not engaged in parish work, etc., etc.

Personally, guided by experience of the last war, I laid in some stock when this war broke out, and before the coupon system came into vogue at all, and on this stock I am carrying on a limited and essential amount of motoring now, and I can assure you my car will not be seen on the streets of Dublin at midnight. There are many others that I know of who did something similar to what I did. In addition, I might mention that I employ a chauffeur. Am I to be allowed to keep him employed, or must I become "a dirty dog?"

Since the new quarter's tax came in the diminution in private car traffic is very noticeable, which goes to show that the private stocks are rapidly being depleted.—Yours, etc.,

"N. C."

PERSONAL HELP WANTED

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—There are many people in Dublin at present who wish to give active and personal help to the country in this time of emergency.

An opportunity exists precisely now for these people. The Mount Street Club, for one week (during April), needs work from 500 individuals. They are not asked to contribute anything but their time. If 500 persons will write to the Secretary, Mount Street Club, or will ring up 61838 for details, they will be working genuinely and solidly, for those few days, for the poor of Dublin.—Yours, etc.,

P. SOMERVILLE LARGE, Chairman,
J. J. NEWCOME, Hon. Secretary,
Board of Governors.

Mount Street Club, 81-83 Lower Mount street, Dublin,

BANK CLERKSHIPS. Pupils of ROSSE COLLEGE, 65 Stephen's Green, Dublin, gained 125 Bank Appts. since Jan., 1939. Class and Postal Tuition. —(Advt.)

NINETY YEARS AGO—

1 In 1851 there were more than 3½ million acres under tillage crops. In 1940 the area tilled was far short of 2 million acres.

2 For the people's food and for the feeding of live stock from next harvest until that of 1942 we require 2¾ million acres of tillage in 1941.

3 Our task is simpler than that which confronted our forefathers who worked without the aid of modern farm machinery and with no artificial fertilisers.

4 Let us accomplish this task in a spirit of determination and confidence.

5 Time is precious. Plough and sow all you can during the next few weeks.

£5 A WEEK FOR SOME READER.

Spring is here. And what could be more pleasant than to greet the season with plenty of spare cash in your pocket. What would you say to £5 a week? Yes. That certainly would be a very handy sum. With it you could really enjoy yourself. You could go places, have a good time on week-ends, buy articles you haven't had the spare cash to buy before, and do a lot of other enjoyable things as well. Ah, yes, you'd really enjoy this Spring if you got a Five Pound Note every week for the next five weeks. All you will have to do is to spend a few minutes filling in the 16 letters needed correctly to complete the winning square in the easy Pennypots Crossword which appears in this issue. That is all. The first prize will be £5 a week for the next five weeks. Somebody must win, enter now, and it may be you. It costs only 2d. per square, or for sixpence you can make four attempts. And, of course, if you really want to you can send in as many entries as you like. There is also an unlimited number of consolation awards for runners-up guaranteed, so that if you miss the first prize you've still got a good chance of winning a consolation award. This week's puzzle closes April 5.

MISSIONS IN WAR-TIME

The Rev. C. W. Armstrong, B.A., who for some years has been in charge of the mission work of the Methodist Church in Italy, and the Rev. Harold B. Rattenbury, B.A., who for 32 years was an outstanding missionary in China, and has recently spent a year there visiting the war-harried portions of the country as one of the Secretaries of the Methodist Missionary Society, will be the two speakers at a public meeting to be held in the Methodist Centenary Church, St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, on Tuesday evening next, when Mr. H. H. Forsyth, M.A., LL.B., will preside. Mr. Armstrong's theme will be "The Religious Situation in Fascist Italy," and Mr. Rattenbury will tell something of what he has seen in China in the last few months. On Sunday special Missionary Services will be held in all the Methodist churches of the city and suburbs. The Rev. C. W. Armstrong, B.A.; the Rev. R. W. Boote, B.Sc. (Lahore); the Rev. R. E. Ker, M.A. (Nigeria), and the Rev. E. R. Richardson (India) will be among the preachers. A Young People's Missionary Meeting will be held in the Centenary Church this evening, when the Rev. E. R. Richardson will be the speaker, and a representation will be given by the members of the Young Laymen's League, entitled 'The Man and the Moment.'

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

WARNING TO FARMERS AND STOCK OWNERS

The position regarding Foot and Mouth disease has now become so serious as to be a matter of GRAVE NATIONAL CONCERN.

In their own interests, and to stop further dislocation of the live stock industry, farmers should do all in their power to assist the Department of Agriculture in stamping out the disease.

Farmers can help the Department in the following ways:—

(1) By reporting at once any suspicious symptoms to the nearest Garda barracks.

(2) By keeping away from other herds and by instructing their employees to do likewise.

(3) By keeping other persons away from their herds and lands.

It has now been established that in most of the recent outbreaks infection has been spread through personal contacts.

SYMPTOMS OF THE DISEASE

The first symptoms are lameness and slavering at the mouth. In affected cattle, salivation is generally accompanied by a smacking or sucking sound—a very characteristic symptom of the disease.

Sudden lameness in cattle, sheep or pigs should arouse strong suspicion.

The State will pay full compensation for animals which have to be destroyed on account of the disease, but the Minister for Agriculture has power to refuse payment, and will not hesitate to do so, in any case where the existence of the disease is concealed.

FAILURE TO REPORT THE EXISTENCE OF THE DISEASE WITH ALL PRACTICABLE SPEED IS AN OFFENCE INVOLVING HEAVY PENALTIES.

Issued by the Department of Agriculture.

Rugby Football

Club Form May Be Upset To-day

CUP Rugby frequently goes against club form, and we may see surprises at Lansdowne Road when two second-round ties will be played off. Although they have lost more games than they have won this season, Palmerston have frequently revealed considerable defensive power, and they have seldom had a large score run up against them. Their forwards are a fit, well-trained, bustling lot, and the halves, McCann and Kearon, should be capable of holding their own with T. D. Lambert and Davis. Old Wesley may hold an advantage in thrust in the centre, but both Carter and Reid on the Palmerston wings will require careful watching.

As they are enjoying one of their most successful campaigns, Old Wesley will be disappointed if they fail to come through to the semi-final. The forwards are a really strong eight, and, even though the back division may not be up to the same standard, they are not to be treated lightly. Their regular scrum-half, F. Wolfe, is on the injured list, and his place will be taken by Davis, an Ulster Schools interprovincial of last season. If he can fit in with the rest of the team, Old Wesley ought to advance.

The most inconsistent of the Dublin clubs are Bective Rangers, but they have suffered cruelly from injuries, the team undergoing changes from week to week. Even now they are without a regular full-back, A. Coleman, a scrum-half, taking on the job to-day. Apart from K. Doyle, the back division seems short of class, but Forde is an experienced and resourceful out-half, if rather slow. The pack will be the mainspring, for it has considerable weight, and is capable of controlling the match.

Monkstown's successes have been few and far between, and they are taking a big chance against the Bective forwards by playing an extra back. Frequent defeats have not shaken the morale of the Monkstown men, and, even though it will be a major surprise if they win, they will almost certainly make a fight of it.

Association Football

Prospects for the Cup Semi-finals

F.A.I. Cup Semi-finals.

To-day—Shamrock Rovers v. Waterford, at Dalymount.
To-morrow—Cork United v. Dundalk, at Dalymount.
Starting time, 3.30 p.m.

UNLIKE racehorses, footballers know all about the book of form, but when it comes to Cup matches they do not allow it to affect their play. Consequently, although Waterford and Cork United "should" win the semi-finals with Shamrock Rovers and Dundalk, respectively, no one outside the supporters of the Munster teams is at all certain that they will win. During this week the Irish Times has published interviews with trainers and players of the four teams in the semi-final round of the F.A.I. Cup, and all have been confident of their ability to reach the final.

Cork United, who seemed to be quite the best team in the country till Waterford beat them 2-1 at Cork four weeks ago, had the advantage of being at "home" in their matches in the earlier rounds. They beat Evergreen 2-0 in the first round and Drumcondra 4-2 in the second round. Their road to the semi-final stage was not spectacular, and it is entirely on League form that their prospects must be judged.

Dundalk had a more impressive passage. In the first round, at Dundalk, they gained one of the most impressive victories of the Cup campaign when they beat St. James's Gate 5-1. Then came their mighty duels with Shelbourne 4-4, at Shelbourne Park, 3-3 at Dundalk, and then 2-0 at Dalymount. One point that impressed in those matches was Dundalk's staying power and their irrepressible spirit when being led by their opponents. If Cork United should be leading 2-0 at some stage of Sunday's match, it may be rash to jump to the conclusion that Dundalk are going to be beaten; they "never say die."

In their last three League matches Dundalk have been beaten 4-2 by St. James's Gate, 3-0 by Waterford and 3-1 by Cork United. That looks bad, but the fact of the matter is that Dundalk have not given of their best in those League games. It is the Cup that interests them.

One of the attractions of Sunday's match is that it gives the Dublin public an opportunity of seeing two provincial teams in opposition, and a great crowd should be present at Dalymount.

Waterford had the disadvantage of playing their early round matches on opponents' grounds. They beat Bohemians 1-0 and Limerick 5-3. Shamrock Rovers, on the other hand were at "home" to both Cork Bohemians and Brideville, winning 8-3 and 3-1. Waterford's record here is more impressive, and it also may be noteworthy that Rovers played by no means strikingly when they beat Brideville. Furthermore, when they last met Waterford, at Milltown, Rovers were beaten 3-2.

Were it not for Rovers' reputation in the Cup one might be tempted to "star" Waterford for a win at Dalymount to-day, but Rovers, as their chairman expressed it last Tuesday, are worth a goal to start with on their Cup tradition. Waterford are bringing thirteen players, and the final selection will not be made until just before the match. Teams:—

Shamrock Rovers — McCarthy; Clarke, Healy; McIvor, Bryson, Creevy; Clarke, Ward, Dunne Black, Geoghegan.

Waterford (from)—Daly, Hartery, Myers, O'Mahony, Phelan, Walsh, O'Driscoll, Coad, Johnston, Cameron, M. Hartery, J. Kennedy, O'Keeffe.

Cork United — Foley; McGowan, Duffy; Hooks, Riordan, McKenna; O'Reilly, McFarlane, McCarthy, O'Neill, Madden.

Dundalk — Cluskey; O'Neill, Crawley; Donnelly Hirst, Lunn; Barlow, Reid, Bryan, Morgan, McArdle.

Merry Wanderer May Win at Nottingham

FIELDS will be large at Nottingham to-day, and the King's colours will be carried in two events by his three-year-olds, Merry Wanderer and Longships. It was over this course that Merry Wanderer gained his only success last season, and as he is in very forward condition he is sure to take a lot of beating for the Newark Handicap. The distance is a mile, but this should not trouble him, for he was beaten only a head by Portulan over that distance at Newmarket in November. Quittance, who will oppose him to-day, was then third, a short-head behind, and meets Merry Wanderer on 6lb. better terms, but the King's colt was staying on the better. K[illegible]cky, who finished fifth in that race, has been moving well in gallops at Epsom, while Arbalester, who missed an easier engagement at Lincoln, hails from a stable in form, and is likely to be a menace. Merry Wanderer, however, looks the soundest proposition. Selections:—

Sherwood Plate—Oubliette.
Newark Handicap—Merry Wanderer.
Clumber Plate—Sunny Island (nap).
Spring Handicap—Sir Roger.
Little John Plate—Ling filly.
Bestwood Plate—Scudo.

Weights for Irish Lincolnshire

By Our Racing Correspondent.

The weights for the first Irish Lincolnshire Handicap appear below. The race was arranged to be run on the first day of the Curragh April meeting, but in view of the Government order cancelling all race meetings until further notice, it is doubtful if it will be run on that date or any other. Its fate depends upon whether foot-and-mouth disease spreads or is checked within the next couple of weeks.

The place of honour in the handicap has been allotted to Mr. B. J. Hilliard's Taffytrap, a four years old, who last year won five races over distances varying from five furlongs to a mile, and in nine engagements was unplaced only once. His best performance, perhaps, was when, at Leopardstown last November, he finished third to Mill Boy and Bray View in a six furlong race under the crushing impost of 9st. 12lb. He has been hurdling during the winter, so is likely to be fitter than the majority of the other horses engaged. Even with 9st. 7lb. he, probably, would be a very much fancied candidate.

Miss Paget's pair, Fairfax and Romulus, with 9st. 6lb. and 9st. 5lb. respectively, are nearest to him at the top of the handicap. The highest weight allotted to a three years old is 9st. 3lb., which impost the Maharajah of Kashmir's Rao Raja is asked to carry, while Fair Ina, in the same stable as Taffytrap, by virtue of having passed through her two years old stage unbeaten, has only 2lb. less.

Sol Oriens, a Hyperion colt, who was late in coming to hand last year and won the Beresford Stakes at the Curragh second October meeting with 8st. 3lb., has an attractive appearance. The unlucky Cameron, who, after finishing second to The Gripper in the Irish Cesarewitch, fell when running at Naas, and in subsequent races was rather disappointing, is not overburdened with 9st. 1lb., and Mill Boy, winner of three races at the end of last season, seems nicely handicapped on the 8st. 4lb. mark.

As many stables have more than one horse engaged the acceptances, which are due on April 9, should help towards solving the very difficult problem set by the handicapper. The weights are:—

IRISH LINCOLNSHIRE HANDICAP of 1,000 sovs. Winner 75 per cent., second 15 per cent., and third 10 per cent. of the stakes. A handicap for three years old and upwards. A winner after publication of the weights (March 28th), 7lb. extra. Horses not struck out on April 9th pay 5 sovs. extra. The New Mile.

Greyhound Racing: Backers Fare Badly at Harold's Cross

There was an exceptionally large attendance last night at Harold's Cross Park, where greyhound racing came to a temporary stoppage following on the Order of the Government. It was a bad night for backers of favourites—only two of which won. They began badly, when the 8 to 1 chance, Flying Regent, scored in the Ulster Plate, and finished on a depressing note when Gleann Mara, starting at 10 to 1 won the Liffey Plate. In Heat I. of the March Sweepstakes Golden Bob landed the odds by a runaway victory, but Mick's Speed, fancied for Heat II., finished third behind Commissioner for Lands and Steel Blade.

MARCH SWEEPSTAKE (550 yards)—Heat I.—Mr. J. Kellegher's f. d. GOLDEN BOB (Brilliant Bob—Nul Na Gur) (5), 5 to 4 on, 1; Dim Vision (2), 6 to 1, 2; Twink (1), 2 to 1, 3. Also ran:—Coach Keeper (3), 5 to 1; Blue Phase (4), 100 to 7. 3l.; neck. 32.53 secs.

MARCH SWEEPSTAKE—Heat II.—Miss D. Davies's bd. d. COMMISSIONER FOR LANDS (Lixnaw—Lamb's Tails) (1), 3 to 1, 1; Steel Blade (5), 5 to 2, 2; Mick's Speed (2), 2 to 1, 3. Also ran:—Two Bright Eyes (4), 5 to 1; Williamstown Skipper (3), 3 to 1. 2l.; 1½l. 32.86 secs.

ULSTER PLATE (525 yards)—Miss K. Power's be. d. FLYING REGENT (Reigning Regent—O'Brien's [illegible]) (5), 8 to 1, 1; Bella's Witch [illegible] to 1, 2; Cool Bright Eyes (1), 5 to 4 on, 3. Also ran:—Jack Fleet (4), 3 to 1; Aunt Jennie (2), 4 to 1; Vesington Veteran (3), 8 to 1. 1½l., 1l. 32.06 secs.

METROPOLITAN PLATE (525 yards)—Mr. T. Savage's f. d. ROZZER'S JOY (Rozzer's Pet—Red Fern Lass) (6) 4 to 1, 1; Woodmill (2), 6 to 1 2; Negro's Lady (1), 7 to 4, 3. Also ran:—Fair Favourite (3), 10 to 1; Famous Mystery (5), 5 to 2; Taranaca (4), 8 to 1. 1l.; 3l. 31.63 secs.

MIDLAND HURDLE (525 yards)—Mrs. H. O'Reilly's f. d. FIALLACH (Feather Leg—Forget) (6), 2 to 1, 1; Moonlight Mickey (1), 2 to 1, 2; Kilcash Lemon (3), 5 to 2, 3. Also ran—Another Zeda (4), 4 to 1. 3l.; 2l. 32.65 secs.

HAROLD'S CROSS SPRINT (350 yards)—Mr. J. Delaney's f. d. DIGGER'S REST (Dee Gold—Dee Ela) (2), 2 to 1, 1; Kylock Feather Leg (1), 6 to 4 on, 2; Mayfair Queen (3), 5 to 1, 3. Also ran—Sandorney (4), 8 to 1; Quaint Show (5), 5 to 1. 1l.; 3l. 20.39 secs.

LIFFEY PLATE (525 yards)—Mr. M. Oh-Iceadha's bd. d. GLEANN MARA (Hedgeside—Quintin Maid) (5), 10 to 1, 1; Mahon's Guide (6), 7 to 2, 2; Queerin Delight (4), 5 to 1, 3. Also ran—Lone Rambler (3), 10 to 1; Killenlea (1), 6 to 4; Jazz Man (2), 2 to 1. 2l.; 1l. 31.29 secs.

OTHER TRACK RESULTS

Massed Start Race at Dundalk

The Cuchullain Club has received a very big entry for its 25 miles massed start race at Dundalk to-morrow. The start is timed for 3 o'clock, and dressing accommodation will be provided at Short's restaurant. Teams have been entered by the following clubs:—Western (Belfast), Eagle (Dublin), Frontier (Newry), Midland (Kildare), Bohermeen (Meath), St. Vincent's, Harp, Kentstown (Meath), Alco, Westport, Crescent (Belfast), Cuchullain (Dundalk). A special train, calling at Drogheda, will leave Amiens street at 10 a.m.

A meeting of the National Executive, N.C.A., will be held at Short's restaurant at 12.30, at which championships for the year will be arranged.

Leinster's Visit to Carlow To-day

Connaught are very much out of luck in their return interprovincial engagement with Leinster at Carlow to-day, two of their key men in the forward line, P. O'Keeffe and J. G. Bolger, being unable to play. This will weaken the team considerably, and means a reconstruction of the attack. With their powerful attack, constructive halves and sound defence, a Leinster victory seems fairly certain, even though Connaught invariably make a fight of it.

Dowdall Beats Chandler in Exciting Bout

By P. D. McWEENEY.

A very exciting scrap between P. Dowdall and E. Chandler took the honours in the good programme by the Baldonnel and Island Bridge Clubs at the Stadium last night. Quicker on his feet and quicker to punch, Dowdall did a lot more scoring, but Chandler hit him with a couple of rights in the third round which might have knocked out a less fit and strong opponent. After that, Dowdall was decidedly wary of that right, but only on very rare occasions did he allow it to land, and he was a clear points winner.

Snappier and straighter punching, especially with his left leads, gave Jimmy Smith a clear advantage over Private W. Gifford in a good contest. Gifford was strong enough to keep the champion on tenterhooks all the time, but Smith did more punching, and put in a particularly fine last round.

Not since his championship days has Constable Gallacher fought better than on this occasion in out-pointing Sergeant Ryan, his conqueror in the recent championships. His short-arm punches were deadly accurate, and in the fifth round, particularly, he hit Ryan very heavily to the body with his right. It was an unusually good middle-weight bout.

The new fly-weight champion, P. Alford, met with defeat on his first appearance since winning the title at the hands of Pte. Maloney. It was a very close decision, which Alford might have got by reason of his better ringcraft in the first three rounds, when he scored on the defensive, and made Maloney miss repeatedly. When Maloney did hit he hurt, and he did the bulk of the attacking throughout.

Lacking the usual sting in his left hand, A. Delahunt was a rather fortunate winner over P. Glennon, who was, to my mind, leading coming into the last round, but then faded out. His right was constantly dangerous but Delahunt kept his left poking in throughout those last two minutes, and that gave him a narrow margin.

Doing more solid punching than usual, M. Sadlier, the middle-weight champion, easily outpointed Pte. J. Campbell, but he missed a clear chance of a knock-out, for he put Campbell down in the fourth round with a right uppercut, but failed to pick the next punch, which should have been decisive.

A substitute put up one of the best fights of the night. Private R. Byrne, of the Curragh, came on for Private Barrington to tackle our second-best bantam-weight, T. Christie, and he shook his opponent to the heels with right crosses and upper-cuts in the second round. Weakness in defence cost him the other three rounds, and in the third and fourth he took a great deal of punishment, and took it splendidly. Even when he was having a hard time he was capable of unleashing a stiff punch, and he is clearly a man to watch for the future.

THE RESULTS

Fly-Weight—Private T. Maloney (Collins) beat P. Alford (Corinthians) on points.
Bantam-Weight — Private T. Christie (Army and Arbour Hill) beat Private R. Byrne (Curragh) on points.
Feather-Weight—A. Delahunt (Unity) beat P. Glennon (Tramway) on points; J. Smith (Clonmel) beat Private W. Gifford (Army and North City) on points.
Light-Weight — Corporal P. Dowdall (Island Bridge) beat E. Chandler (Corinthians) on points.
Welter-Weight—Corporal V. Black (Baldonnel) beat Corporal T. Hyland (Collins, Cork) on points; T. Foran (Unity) beat F. Bathgate (Derry) on points.
Middle-Weight—M. Sadlier (Whitehall) beat Private J Campbell (Baldonnel) on points; Constable W. Gallacher (R.U.C.) beat Sergeant E. Ryan (Island Bridge) on points.
Cruiser-Weight—P. Guest (Dundalk) beat Corporal J. Kelleher (Baldonnel) on points; J. Keenan (Portlaoighise) beat Corporal T. Costello (Collins, Cork) on points.
Heavy-Weight—Corporal M. Dwan (Island Bridge) beat J. Kerry (Phœnix) on points.

INTER-SCHOOLS' CONTEST

This Evening—C.U.S. Juniors v. St. Andrew's College Juniors. C.U.S., 7.30.

Strong Cork Team for Hurling Final

(By PAT'O.)

Cork's Selectors have picked fifteen experienced players for their Hurling League final with Dublin, at Cork, to-morrow. Every man has served in League, Cup and Championship; the line-out follows closely on the team that drew with Limerick at Thurles and defeated every opposition in the League. The team is:—J. Buttimer (goal); W. Murphy, W. Thornhill, A. Lotty; W. Campbell, J. Quirke, D. J. Buckley; J. Barrett, C. Buckley; T. Ring, J. Lynch, J. Young; C. Moylan, T. O'Sullivan, M. Brennan.

Thirteen of these players ran Kilkenny to a point in the 1939 final. Every man is a seasoned performer in high-grade games, yet Barrett (Kinsale) is the only slowing member of a comparatively young side. I learn that Dublin travels from Kingsbridge as selected, with Donegan, Crowley, Egan, Glynn, Roche and McDonnell as reserves. Hurling will reach a high standard.

The opening of the Dublin Senior Football Championship will attract big companies at Croke Park as Crumlin. McDermotts should win well from St. Pauls and St. Marys (Saggart) should advance a stage. Clan-na-Gael have a smart young side to beat in Sylvesters, of Malahide. O'Tooles and Parnells are well matched. Fixtures:—

Cork—Hurling League final — Cork v. Dublin, 3.0.
Croke Park — St. Sylvesters v. Clan-na-Gael, 3.0; O'Tooles v. Parnells, 4.15.
Crumlin—Sean McDermotts v. St. Pauls, 12.0; St. Marys v. St. Agnes, 1.15.
Swords—Geraldines v. Mackens, 3.0.
Parnell Park—Garda v. Ben Edars, 12.45; St. Josephs v. Ard Craobh, 2.0.

Ulster Players Get Through

The Northern Ireland interprovincial players, H. Cavan and H. Oprey, won their matches in straight sets in the fourth round of the Men's Singles last night at the O'Connell Hall. All competitors remaining in events, except specially exempted players, are requested to be in attendance this afternoon at 2.30, and the semi-finals and finals will start at 7 o'clock to-night. Results:—

MEN'S SINGLES.
Fourth Round—H. Carlile beat M. Browne, 21-12, 21-13; H. Cavan beat N. Neville, 21-19, 21-15; H. Oprey beat C. J. Bonynge, 21-13, 21-18; C. J. Hussey beat N. Boal, 17-21, 23-21, 21-18.

Foot-and-Mouth Regulations.—"You must recognise the necessity for these regulations and the very heavy penalties which such offences incur," said District Justice J. V. Fahy, when, at Waterford Court yesterday, he applied the Probation Act in a summons against Laurence Barnable, Harristown, County Kilkenny, for moving four pigs in a cart along the public road at Mullinavat on March 4th, within a scheduled area, under the foot-and-mouth restrictions, without a Departmental licence. Barnable said that he had not heard at the time that there had been any outbreak of the disease in the Counties of Kilkenny and Waterford. As soon as he found it necessary to procure a licence he procured one.

A SOLICITOR'S DOWNFALL

"MANIA FOR BACKING HORSES"

In the Dublin Circuit Criminal Court yesterday, before Judge Davitt, a sentence of six months' hard labour, to date from his arrest, was imposed on Thomas F. Dempsey, a Dublin solicitor, who pleaded guilty to charges of obtaining £40 by means of a worthless cheque, from the Bank of Ireland, Ormond quay, Dublin; £26 by means of a worthless cheque from Cornelius J. Ryan, National Bank, Newbridge, and £20 from Henry J. Hoban, 143 North Circular road, Dublin.

He pleaded not guilty to charges of forging the name of Bernard Bernstein on a cheque for £60; of uttering the cheque, and of attempting to obtain moneys by means of worthless cheques for £70 and £21 from R. J. Duggan, turf accountant, Dublin; a nolle prosequi was entered by the State.

Detective Sergeant O'Connor said that Dempsey practised in Tuam as a solicitor for some years before joining the firm of Little, O hUadhaigh and Proud. He later became attached to the office of Mr. Bernstein, and finally opened his own office in Dame street. He had a mania for backing horses. His people were very respectable, but there was little hope of any of the money being repaid. He said that he had warned Dempsey on several occasions, and had asked him to stop. He was sorry for him, and asked the Judge to be as lenient as possible.

Mr. James Cawley, K.C. (instructed by Mr. J. J. Kennedy), who defended, asked that sentence be deferred until the next sitting.

Judge Davitt said that he was sorry for Dempsey, but could not dispense with imprisonment.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

CYCLIST FATALLY INJURED

William Murphy, Kilsallaghan, Swords, Co. Dublin, was found guilty of the manslaughter of James Savage, Rathbeale, Co. Dublin, who was killed when his cycle and a motor car driven by Murphy were in collision on July 21 last. He was put back for sentence.

The jury added a strong recommendation for mercy.

Judge Davitt described the case as very bad, indeed, but said that he would give the jury's recommendation every consideration. If he were to sentence Murphy there and then, it would be a sentence of penal servitude.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), prosecuted; Mr. Barry Tynan O'Mahony (instructed by Messrs. McGinley and McGinley) defended.

THEFT OF CIGARETTES

William Donoghue, a private in the Construction Corps, who pleaded guilty to the charge of stealing two packets of cigarettes from a Dublin shopkeeper by falsely claiming that he was a corporal in the National Army, was sentenced to three years in a Borstal institution.

Detective Officer R. O'Shea, who, with Detective Officer McShane, had charge of the case, said that Donoghue had been convicted three times previously.

Captain Dalton said that Donoghue had been dismissed from the National Army. He must have put the red stripe on his sleeve himself.

The loss of valuable possessions can be mitigated by a Norwich Union Policy.—J. G. Aston, Mgr. 63 Dawson street, Dublin. —(Advt.)

ROYAL ULSTER SOCIETY

IMPORTANCE OF AGRICULTURE

From Our Correspondent.

BELFAST, Friday.

The Right Hon. J. Milne Barbour, D.L., Northern Minister of Finance and President of the Royal Ulster Agricultural Society, moved the adoption of the report at the Society's annual meeting in Belfast to-day.

Mr. W. M. Fullerton, Chairman of the Finance Committee, seconding the motion, said that he regretted to report a reduction of £1,596 in members' subscriptions, but they were grateful to those members still loyally supporting the society. Expenditure had been reduced to a minimum, and he was glad to be able to report a net surplus of £1,507 1s. 1d. to be added to their general fund.

On the motion of Lord Glentoran, Minister of Agriculture, seconded by Major A. R. G. Gordon, M.P., Mr. Barbour was re-elected President. The following vice-presidents were re-elected:—The Prime Minister (Right Hon. J. M. Andrews), Right Hon. Sir Basil Brooke, Bart. (Minister of Commerce), and Right Hon. Senator Samuel Cunningham.

Lieutenant-Colonel R. T. G. Lowry, D.L., was elected Vice-President to fill the vacancy caused by Lord Craigavon's death.

DR. MARK RYAN'S WILL

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MARTIN MAGUIRE.)

Reserved judgment was given admitting to probate, subject to the usual proof of due execution, a will of October 4, 1917, of Dr. Mark Ryan, late of Lindsay road, Dublin, who died on June 17 last.

It was stated that Dr. Ryan had lived during the greater part of his life in London and had left estate valued at £12,600. He appeared to have executed other testamentary documents, but they were not available, and there was no evidence whether the 1917 will had been revoked or not. The next-of-kin all had consented to the 1917 will being admitted to probate.

Mr. Justice Martin Maguire allowed all parties their costs.

Mr. Michael Binchy, K.C., and Mr. Bacon (instructed by Mr. James G. O'Connor) appeared for Mr. Art O Briain Pembroke road, Dublin, surviving executor of the 1917 will; Mr. Davy (instructed by Mr. James G. O'Connor) for Miss Margaret Ryan, Lindsay road, Dublin, sister of Dr. Ryan; and Mr. D. Corbet (instructed by Messrs. Neilan and Larkin) and Mr. McDowell (instructed by Mr. Gerald Maguire), for other next-of-kin.

THE SALE OF CLERY AND CO.

SIR C. NIXON'S EVIDENCE

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE GAVAN DUFFY.)

The hearing of the action of Messrs. Clery and Co., Ltd., Lower O'Connell street, Dublin, against Mr. E. J. Shott, 39 Dame street, Dublin, and Mr. Denis Guiney, 79 Talbot street, Dublin, was continued, and adjourned until next Tuesday.

The company ask the court to set aside a contract for the sale of the entire business of the company by Mr. Shott, the Receiver appointed by the debenture holders, the Equity and Law Life Assurance Society, to Mr. Guiney for £230,000, alleging that the price is more than £200,000 less than the value of the assets, an allegation which the defence denies.

Mr. Leonard, K.C., Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. Marnan (instructed by Messrs. E. and G. Stapleton) appeared for Messrs. Clery and Co., Ltd.; Mr. Overend, K.C., Mr. H. J. Moloney, K.C., and Mr. Vaughan Wilson (instructed by Messrs. Whitney, Moore and Keller) for Mr. Shott; and Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., Mr. Costello, K.C., and Mr. Davy (instructed by Messrs. James L. Burke and Co.) for Mr. Guiney.

Mr. William Dwyer, Managing Director of Sunbeam Wolsey, Ltd., Cork, whose cross-examination was resumed by Mr. Overend, said that he had been very anxious to take over Clerys; and, in reply to Mr. Rice, he said that he imagined that the system of valuing the stock in some of the departments gave a gross over valuation. He thought that Clerys was value for more than the price he offered, and that he might have gone another £25,000 or £50,000 if he had thought there was another bidder.

Having been asked by Mr. Rice did not a letter written by witness to Mr. Guiney on November 18 suggest that the business would be more profitable to him than to Mr. Guiney, because the witness would keep up fixed prices. Mr. Dwyer replied that Mr. Guiney had the reputation of having made more money in the drapery trade than any other draper in Dublin, and still he sold stuff at lower prices than anybody else.

POSSIBLE BUYERS

Mr. Raymond Judd, a member of Messrs. Battersby and Co., Westmoreland street, Dublin, stated in reply to Mr. Leonard that early in October, he informed Mr. Shott that he had what he believed would be a genuine buyer for Clerys, and that he knew of another possible buyer. The valuation of £250,000 that he made of Clerys in December, 1935, would not need now to be reduced by more than 30 per cent.

Mr. David F. Foley and Mr. Patrick McNally, buyers, having given evidence about valuation of stock and selling prices,

SIR C. NIXON'S EVIDENCE

Sir Christopher Nixon, who said that he had been managing director of the company since February, 1938, and chairman of the board of directors before that, gave evidence regarding the financial position of the company in 1940. It had, he said, become particularly difficult in the summer and early autumn. At a conference on September 27 Mr. Shott told them that £70,000 or £80,000 were required to make the company safe.

On the night of October 30 Mr. Shott told him of a proposition that was to be put up by Mr. "X." He had no information from Mr. Shott about anybody else, and on telephoning to Mr. White, of the Equity and Law Assurance Society, on November 16 he was amazed to hear that the premises were being closed. He then went to London and a board meeting of the debenture holders, at which the offer of Mr. Guiney was being considered, was adjourned for an hour to enable him to get in touch with his solicitor in Dublin. Mr. Stapleton told him what the bank wanted, and those things could have been arranged if there had been time. When he returned to Dublin he learned for the first time that the price in the contract was £230,000.

In regard to credit accounts, he said that Clerys showed figures which had not been shown by any other firm in the trade. Over a period of ten years they had collected 19s. 11.4d. in the £. Clery's situation was the centre of what was called "the golden crust" of the city—the place where most business was done—and in his view The site was absolutely pre-eminent for a big cash trade.

Cross-examined by Mr. Moloney, he said that in November, 1939, he felt that Clerys were suffering from too heavy overheads and he thought that the best solution would be to see if they could get premises which would not be so expensive and realise the existing premises. He went to London to see whether he would be likely to get a market for the premises, not because he did not expect to find a purchaser in Ireland, but because he thought he would get a higher price. At that time Clerys were going along all right: there was no question then of any terrific financial stringency.

The cross-examination of Sir Christopher Nixon had not concluded when the Court rose.

£214 FOR INJURY IN A CINEMA

(BEFORE THE MASTER OF THE HIGH COURT.)

A consent to settlement for £214, and a sum for medical expenses and costs, was made a rule of Court in an action in which Mrs. Rose Murphy, Ross's Hotel Yard, Parkgate street, Dublin, claimed damages against Associated Picture Houses, Ltd., Upper O'Connell street, Dublin, for injuries suffered at the Broadway Cinema, Manor street, Dublin, when she fell off a seat from which, it was stated, the back was missing, on July 26 last.

Messrs. Louis C. P. Smith and Co. were solicitors for Mrs. Murphy; and Messrs. Hoey and Denning were solicitors for Associated Picture Houses, Ltd.

Tillage Order Prosecution. — For having failed to cultivate the proper proportion of his land, James Kingston, Knocknamallavogue, Ballinhassig, was fined £5 at Cork District Court yesterday. In his defence it was urged that he had no help on the land, and his wife was an invalid. He had advertised land for tillage without result.

DUBLIN

INDUSTRIALS EASIER

FUNDS GENERALLY HIGHER

Markets were fairly busy on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, but in view of the clouded industrial outlook and week-end considerations there was some selling of certain local securities, and the tone was dull in places. British Industrials were helped by the war news, and a firmer trend was evident in most directions.

Home Government Funds were mostly buyers and the Fourth National Loan and 4½ p.c. Land Bonds added fractions, while Galway Harbour 4 p.c. jumped three points to 101. There was a good business passing in British Funds, and prices inclined to harden. Bank of Ireland Stock relapsed three points to 280. Guinness Units closed several pence lower at 62/3. Dublin Distillers "A" eased the turn to 4/7½, but Distillers Ord advised higher at around 60/6.

Rails continued stagnant. Dublin Tram Ord. and Pref. shaded off to 14/- and 22/6 respectively, but the "A" Deb. made good headway to 94. Alliance Gas Ord. eased to 19/7½ on the chairman's remarks at the general meeting. Irish-Amer. Oil Pref., Assoc. Chocolate Pref., and Clondalkin Paper Ord. all hardened slightly. Batchelor Ord. moved up to 5/4½.

Imperial Tobacco Ord. advanced 1/1½ to 91/-, and B.A.T. Ord. were called 1/- higher around 87/6. Coats Ord. gave way to 28/1½, but Courtaulds were firmer at 30/6. Dunlop Rubber and Vickers Ord. advised higher.

PORK BUTCHER'S CLAIMS

In the Dublin Circuit Court yesterday, before Judge Shannon, claims for £80 10s. for overtime worked and £4 10s. damages for wrongful dismissal were claimed by James Ellis, a pork butcher, 36 North Great Charles street, Dublin, against Patrick O'Neill, Newmarket, Dublin. Ellis had been employed by the defendant as a butcher at a weekly wage of £4 6s.

Ellis alleged that on 30th July, 1940, he was dismissed without reasonable notice, as had been agreed under a verbal contract.

The defence was that the plaintiff had misconducted himself by habitually neglecting his duties and was, therefore, dismissed. It was further contended that he had never worked overtime, and that if he did do so it was not done for the defendant.

The hearing was adjourned until next Friday.

Mr. Carroll O'Daly (instructed by Mr. Desmond Moran) appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Felix Sherry (instructed by Mr. L. Trant McCarthy) defended.

LONDON

CHEERFUL TONE REMAINS

FUNDS AND RAILS STILL RISING

The cheerful atmosphere in which the London Stock markets opened yesterday remained in evidence during the day, and, though the volume of business did not show any great expansion, dealings were being entered into more freely, and most of the stock that came on offer was willingly taken.

In the Gilt-edged market the continuance of the moderate flow of buying orders caused a further appreciation of prices under the lead of 3½ p.c. Conversion Loan, which put on ⅛ to 104⅜. Both Old Consols and the 4 p.c. stock rose ⅛, and 3½ p.c. War Loan improved to the level of 105. There were other appreciations, but exceptionally 3 p.c. and 5 p.c. Conversions were slightly easier.

Among Foreign Bonds, Greek Bonds were singled out for attention, and the 7 p.c. issue advanced 2½ to 21½.

British Rails followed in the wake of the Gilt-edged market and the changes were all in favour of holders. Gains ranged up to 1½ in the case of Southern Pref. Ord., while Great Western Ord. and several others were a point to the good, the junior stocks of most of the companies being fractionally higher. Foreign and Colonial Rails did not attract much attention.

Bank and Insurance shares were strong. In sympathy with the firmness in other sections, Industrial and Miscellaneous issues were generally good. Among Breweries, Guinness were 3d. easier at 63/9, with Watney Def lower by the same trifle at 37/9. South African Breweries, however, advanced to 112/-, a rise of 1/6. In the Tobacco group, Imperials closed at 92/6, an advance of 1/10½. "Bats," at 87/6, were 7½d. to the good, and Godfrey Phillips gained 1/3 to 27/6.

CABLE ISSUES UP

Iron and Steel shares were quietly steady. Courtaulds received support from the North and put on 4½d. to 30/7½, while Coats, at 28/7½, showed a gain of 3d. Cable and Wireless Ord. and Pref. both improved. Associated Cement added 7½d. Boots Drug gained 9d. and Beecham's Pills 6d. British Oil and Cake and Borax both put on more than 1/-. Brazilian Traction gained 5/16 and British Oxygen 7½d. Dunlop Rubbers gained 4½d. to 33/4½; Imperial Chemicals hardened the turn, and Triplex Glass and United Molasses were also better. Turner and Newall, however, slipped back 7½d.

Among Oil shares, Anglo-Iranian Ord. rose 7½d., and the Pref. also improved, with Burmahs a good market; but Mexican Eagles lost the turn. Shell Transport finished with a rise of 7½d. at 41/10½.

In the Mining market Western Reefs were prominent with a rise of 9d. to 26/-. Crowns went ahead to 12, a rise of ⅛, and other gains included 7½d. in East Rand Prep. and 7½d. in "Sallies." West Springs and Kleinfonteins, however, were easier. West Africans were steady, and firmness was also displayed by the Rhodesian Copper group. Indian Gold shares were dull.

THE MONEY MARKET

The Discount Market Syndicate once again altered its bid for Treasury bills yesterday, the figure being raised 1d. to £99 14/11, as the bills offered have one day less to run than those available a week before. This move does not mean such a reduction in the margin of profit as might at first appear. The change in the Syndicate bid did, however, succeed in raising the market quota to the comparatively good level (judged by recent standards) of 28 per cent. of requirements. Last week, when the market bid was reduced by 1d., the allotment came out at only 17 per cent. There was a persistent demand for bills on Clearing Bank account, but the turnover was hardly larger than on the preceding days. Rates were not altered.

Silver prices were without change at 23½d. and 23⅜d. per oz. for spot and forward respectively.

Foreign exchange rates were also without quotable change.

BUILDING SOCIETY HAD GOOD YEAR

The sixth annual report and statement of accounts of the Educational Permanent Building Society for the year 1940, presented to yesterday's annual meeting in Dublin, stated that the operations of the year showed an increase in all departments.

The receipts from all sources amounted to £19,552, and the advances on mortgages to £14,126. The amount to the credit of shareholders was £30,942, and to the credit of depositors £8,437. The assets had increased by £11,724, and were now £46,284. The amount due on mortgages at the end of the year was £45,800. The Board had sanctioned the payment of a dividend of 3½ per cent. (free of income tax), and £680 was carried forward.

The Chairman (Mr. David Coyle, P.C.), in the course of his speech, said that the word building in the title meant the funds of the Society were invested in buildings, and not, say, in hardware, drapery or other lines of commerce. Another important point was that under the rules the Society could only advance money on first mortgages of any buildings and even then only about 75 per cent., subject to the discretion of the Board and a surveyor's report. In addition, their Building Society was subject to the control of the Registrar of Friendly Societies, and they had to carry on business under approved rules and regulations.

They offered the investor the security of well-placed first mortgages on approved properties which was equal or better than many trustee standards, he added. They used the money for what was, perhaps, one of the finest social ideals in human life, since they gave to all the facilities and opportunity to acquire their family home.

The report was adopted, and the following directors were elected:—Mr. T. J. Cullen, Dr. J. Carroll, Mr. Andrew Lavin and Mr. H. J. McManus.

HOTEL COMPANY'S BIGGER DIVIDEND

The annual meeting of the Dolphin Hotel and Restaurant Co. and Michael Nugent, Ltd., was held yesterday at the Dolphin Hotel, Dublin. Dr. Charles J. Murray, chairman, presided, and moved the adoption of the report for the year 1940; the payment of a dividend of 4 per cent. on the Ord. shares, together with a shareholders' addendum that the directors be paid in full the fees already fixed.

Dr. Murray said that the business of the company generally had been very well maintained, and the directors were able to recommend the payment of 4 per cent. on the Ord. shares, as against 3 per cent. the previous year. He said that a considerable sum had been expended during the year upon the renewal of necessary plant, so that the entire concern was in good condition.

The motion was unanimously adopted.

A colonel V.C. told a Liverpool Courtmartial yesterday that a sergeant, accused of ill-treating conscientious objectors in the Pioneer Corps, was "kind and considerate." Sergeant Francis Richard Norris was found not guilty of assaulting Privates E. A. Walker, L. Worth and A. Foster. Findings of the court on a fourth charge, relating to Private R. W. Bailey will be pronounced later.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Friday.

The Stock Market slowly receded in the afternoon. The settlement of the Bethlehem Steel strike had a heartening effect, nevertheless numerous strikes continue to exert pressure on the market.

The turnover of 440,000 shares comprised 691 issues, of which 178 were higher and 309 were lower.

Steel Shares were down anything to a point in the afternoon. Rails, after being supported owing to optimism regarding revenues, faltered together with Industrials, Aircrafts and Oils. The closing tone was steady.

A block of 50,000 Woolworth Shares is being offered over the counter at 30⅛.—(Reuter.)

AUCTION SALES

MESSRS. BATTERSBY AND CO.

To-day in our auction columns Messrs. Battersby and Co. set out details of forthcoming auctions of residential and business properties, an annuity, and antique furniture, etc. At their property salerooms on Thursday, 10th April, they will offer No. 1 Ailesbury road, Merrion, semi detached residence, with possession; 13 Duke street, off Grafton street, a well-known and established tobacconist, confectionery and newsagency business, as a going concern; an annuity of rent charge of £20 per annum out of property in Upper Gloucester street, and 20 Lea road, Sandymount, semi-detached modern residence, with possession. Messrs. Battersby's property sale on 24th April will include "Ulverton," Dalkey, the residence of the late Dr. Wright, standing on some 2¾ acres. An important sale is announced for a date to be named at "Kilronan Castle," County Roscommon, when the valuable library of books, oil portraits and paintings, and antique furniture will be sold by direction of the Right Hon. the Earl of Kingston. Full details will be found in our advertising columns.

MESSRS. DOCKRELL, SONS AND CO.

On Thursday next, 3rd April, this firm will hold their next property auction at their salerooms, South Great George's street, at 1.15 p.m., when they will offer a non-basement residence known as Greenfield, Sandyford, standing on approximately 16 statute acres. On Wednesday, 16th April, they will hold an auction of house and furniture on the premises at 83 Hollybrook road, Clontarf. The house will be offered for sale at 12 noon, and the furniture immediately afterwards. On Thursday, 17th April they will hold another property auction at their salerooms, South Great George's street, at 1.15 p.m., to include the following:—14 Crescent Villas, off Iona road, Glasnevin. The house will be sold subject to the present tenancy. This investment shows a profit rent, after deducting head and rates, of £28 6s. 3d.; 81 Kimmage road, West. On Wednesday, 9th April, they will hold a furniture auction at 34 Alma road, Monkstown, commencing at 12 noon.

MESSRS. JACKSON STOPS AND McCABE.

As will be seen from our advertising columns, Messrs. Jackson Stops and McCabe, Auctioneers, Kildare street, announce that they will offer for sale by auction, at their salerooms in Kildare street, on Wednesday next, 2nd April, a most attractive residential property, Foxrock Lodge, Foxrock, Co. Dublin, which is being sold by direction of the executrix of the late Claude J. Rutherfoord. The house stands in grounds of about 10 acres of valuable lands. Vacant possession of the whole will be given to the purchaser. At a later date the major portion of the furniture will be sold by auction on the premises.

MR. ALBERT MacARTHUR.

Mr. Albert MacArthur, The Housefinder, announces eleven lots of property for auction on Tuesday, 1st April, and Tuesday, 8th April. On Tuesday next, at MacArthur House, D'Olier street—125 Strand road, Merrion; 157 South Circular road, Dolphin's Barn; 26 Cabra Park, Phibsborough, with possession; and investments, 8 Hardwicke street, 82 Capel street, 45 and 46 Fenian street. FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

SAVE YOUR STOCK!

"There is no doubt that the spread of the disease in most cases is due to human agency."

(Dr. RYAN, Minister for Agriculture).

The Minister's words must impress on you the necessity to do everything in your power to prevent this dreadful scourge from reaching your stock. It is a well-known fact that the most effective method to help to prevent the spread of the disease is to fumigate the body and clothing of all persons coming in contact with your lands and animals.

A patent was recently applied for for a New Irish Invention making it possible to completely fumigate a person without the usual complicated and expensive apparatus. The invention is a portable compartment which can be erected anywhere—indoor or outdoor. It is simple and economical to use, and effectively kills all germs on the body and clothing. It is now being sold and marketed as the "PROTECTOR PORTABLE FUMIGATOR," and during the present crisis is used to protect some of the most valuable Herds.

Prices range from £2 15/- to £4 4/-, including stock of Fumigating Gas Charges.

For SAFEST PROTECTION install a "PROTECTOR" unit now. All enquiries to Fumigator Department, 12 LINCOLN PLACE, DUBLIN. Distributors required throughout Eire.

CORPORAL COONEY FUND.

The Committee wish to acknowledge with grateful thanks receipt of the following subscriptions towards the Fund in aid of the widow and aged mother of the late Corporal Cooney. Corporal Cooney lost his life in the tragedy at Portobello Bridge during the Christmas season when he and Private Thomas Keenan made a gallant effort to save the entrapped occupants of a car which had plunged into the canal.

The Committee feel that the response to their appeal does not truly represent the widespread appreciation and admiration of the noble deed of this gallant member of the National Army from Mayo, who made the supreme sacrifice in an endeavour to save life. They believe that it is necessary only to remind the public that the Fund has been inaugurated to bring many more subscriptions from those of our citizens who admire courage and who can afford any sum, large or small, towards his dependents—and a small tribute to Private Keenan.

Further subscriptions will be gratefully received by Alderman Alfred Byrne, T.D., Williamsfort, Temple Gardens, Rathmines; Mr. Erskine Childers, T.D., 68 Highfield road, Rathgar; or Mr. A. V. Cathcart, Group Leader, L.S.F., 64 Frankfort avenue, Rathgar:—
